Washington Coroner's Office, However, Contents Officer Was Slain Just Before Wedding Date.

INQUIRY TO OPEN AGAIN TOMORROW

Friends Say Police Department Has Advanced Suicide Theory to Protect Its Own Laxness.

By Staff Correspondent of the Post-Dispatch and New York World.

WASHINGTON, Nov. 15.—Washington Coroner's office today announced that it had received a report from the police department that a detective had committed suicide just before his wedding.

The detective, it was stated, was a man of the name of "Lafayette Young," and was a member of the police department.

The coroner's office, however, is not satisfied with the police department's explanation, and has decided to hold an inquiry into the matter tomorrow.

The police department, it was stated, had advanced the theory that the detective had committed suicide because of a "laxness" on the part of the police department.

Slain Detective and His Fiance

ARTHUR SCRIVENER AND MISS HELEN PARKER

sions he had obtained the assistance of a fellow detective, and tried to involve a marine officer at Quantico.

Two years previously, Scrivener had threatened suicide while worried over difficulties resulting from his friendship with another girl.

Three days before his planned wedding with Miss Parker, he had revealed his revived love to Miss Parker, his trained-nurse-love of other days and begged her to renew the engagement. She refused and returned an engagement ring he had given her months before.

Scrivener deliberately lied to Miss Parker on at least one point of their marriage, saying that he had been ordered to Danville, Va., to get a prisoner: Detective Chief Pratt denies any such order.

A test of the strength of the torn tie, found clasped in the dead man's hand, made by the Federal Bureau of Standards, required 140 pounds of pressure per textile fabric, and that to tear it from a person's neck would have been utterly impossible.

A detective sergeant weighing 240 pounds then demonstrated to the newspaper men that he could safely suspend himself in the air with a similar tie.

That Scrivener attempted to engage a brother detective in a fake hold-up, with blank cartridges, in order to prove himself a hero and secure desirable publicity.

Deceived His Fiancee.

Miss Parker said she had given her wrist watch to Scrivener to have mended: he gave it to a former detective, now a watchmaker. She price for repairs was $7; Scrivener told her the charges would be $20.

The revolver, found by the body, had the serial numbers carefully filed off. The Bureau of Standards failed to ascertain these numbers. Detective Darnall now says a year ago he gave Scrivener just such a revolver. The fatal bullet was a German-made cartridge and in the private locker of the slain detective, 33 cartridges of the same make were found.

Miss Parker and Miss Markley agree that the engagement ring he took from the latter was the next day given to the former. The police found that the wedding ring cost $3 and both wedding and engagement rings were size 8. Miss Markley's finger measurement, whereas Miss Parker took but size 5.

The detective was not in good financial shape.

The necktie found clutched in the right hand was similar to one he made a gift of to Matthew Walsh, with whom he roomed.

The marriage date with Miss Parker was changed four times.

Lack of motive for the murder, the police could find no jealous lover, indignant husband, or signs of stick-up man.

Scrivener told his bride-to-be that he had made bridal suite reservations at the Hotel Marlinton. The manager of that hotel denies this. These are the "finds" all of which will be gone into thoroughly at the inquest Tuesday. In the meantime, Washington is puzzled whether Scrivener's death was the best-planned murder ever perpetrated in the capital or suicide with a well-conceived effort to hide the act.

C. P. BLAND AND WIFE FREED OF MISCONDUCT

First Mate Then Causes His Arrest on a Charge of Bigamy.

The attempt of Mrs. Isabelle Heard Bland, 5061 Washington boulevard, to prosecute her former husband, Charles P. Bland, wealthy Florida real estate man, and his second wife, Evelyn Fox Bland, for "open, lewd and vicious conduct," failed in the Court of Criminal Correction today, when they were discharged, after a hearing before Provisional Judge Grodzki.

She then announced that she would bring a bigamy prosecution against Bland on the ground that his Mexican divorce was not legal and she is still his wife.

The misdemeanor charge was based on an arrest in a room at the Hotel Colorado, May 21 last, when Bland was charged with "lewd and vicious conduct." The State's only witness, testified he was married to Bland in 1911 and they had never been divorced. To this defense counsel objected, on the ground that if Mrs. Bland was still his wife she could not testify against her husband.

The defense then presented a demurrer, which was overruled.

Mrs. Bland, the second, then took the stand as the only witness for the defense. She testified that she and Bland were married in New Orleans, Dec. 28, 1925. She presented a marriage certificate.

Defense counsel argued that the whole case against Bland rested on the legality of his Mexican divorce from his first wife. He argued that in any event Bland and his second wife were guilty of "lewd and vicious conduct."

With this view Judge Grodzki agreed, but in discharging the defendants he commented, "It seems to me there is a possible basis for prosecution under the bigamy statute."

As he left court Bland was arrested upon complaint of his first wife, who then applied to Assistant Circuit Attorney Wilson for a bigamy warrant. Bland's counsel opposed the application. Wilson withheld decision until Nov. 20, counsel for both sides to submit briefs in the interim. Bland's bond is returnable Nov. 28.

ARTESIAN WELL TO MAKE GARDEN OF DEATH VALLEY

Spring That Saved Jayhawker Party in 1849 Now Makes Resort Possible.

STOVEPIPE WELLS, DEATH VALLEY, Cal., Nov. 15.—Where 77 years ago the starving, thirst-parched members of the famous Jayhawker party here sipped a life-saving draught from a shallow waterhole, a crowd of merry-makers Saturday dined and danced in celebration of the formal opening of a new 24,000-barrel artesian well.

Stovepipe Wells, in the heart of Death Valley, is the lowest spot in America, being 278 feet below sea level. With the opening of the new well, the oasis is being developed as a sightseeing resort, being linked to Mount Whitney by a road piercing the Panamint Mountains.

It was on Nov. 23, 1849, that the Jayhawker party, led by W. Lewis Manly and Tom Rogers, first sighted the shallow waterhole of Stovepipe Wells and took back the good news to the Bennett and Arceane families, who had been suffering children, who had been left behind when the unencumbered members of the party forced on a march through the desert sands. The meager bit of water saved the ventures who had staked their lives in the gamble for California gold.

The new well, with its 1000 barrels of water an hour, has made possible hotels, resort homes, fruit and flowers.

ANTI-RED RUSSIANS ANXIOUS TO GET CROWN JEWELS

Report in New York That Court Efforts Will Be Made to Obtain Gems En Route to U. S.

By the Associated Press.

NEW YORK, Nov. 15.—Report has it that a group of Russians here has been organized to attempt to obtain by legal process jewels of the former imperial household in Russia, which Norman C. Weiss, a jeweler, is bringing from Moscow to America to sell.

Anti-soviet Russians desire to obtain control of these jewels, which are valued at a fabulous sum, to satisfy claims against the Reds.

The jewels run the gamut from the famous nuptial crown of Catherine the Great, which contains 1520 diamonds and is valued at $2,000,000, to a gewgaw in the shape of a baby's rattle of solid gold and ivory upon which the late Czar Nicholas cut his teeth.

Rudolph Oblatt, a New York jeweler and partner of Weiss, said four jewelers were associated in the purchases of jewels, but he declined to identify the other two members of the syndicate.

The jewels run the gamut from the famous nuptial crown of Catherine the Great, which contains 1520 diamonds and is valued at $2,000,000, to a gewgaw in the shape of a baby's rattle of solid gold and ivory upon which the late Czar Nicholas cut his teeth.

The nuptial crown was worn by Catherine when, in 1747, she was married to Peter III. It was made of pure gold set with diamonds, emeralds and rubies, intended for the head of Paul's pet monkey.

Two thousand diamonds are imbedded in a gold snuffbox used by Empress Elizabeth, daughter of Peter the Great. It also holds a blood-colored Jasper. The box is valued at $100,000. There also are several golden Easter eggs embellished with diamonds, the gift of the late Empress Alexandra to her husband. The magnificent bodice worn by Catherine the Great at the coronation of Peter III and herself on January 17, 1762, also is in the lot.

With the assistance of her partner, Gregory Orloff, and others of her followers, Catherine brought about the deposition of Peter in July, 1762, and usurped the throne. Peter was put to death in prison.

Jewels Still in Store.

Advices from Moscow to the Associated Press say all the gems bought by Weiss will be placed on sale in the American market. If there should be no American woman affluent enough to purchase Catherine's crown, Weiss purposes to break up the diadem and sell the stones separately.

Weiss has not yet depleted the soviet government's treasure house, for there remain in the vaults in excess of $200,000,000 worth of imperial jewels which the soviet plans to turn into cash for the purchase of planes, machinery and locomotives and for other practical needs.

Russian Jewels on the Way to New York.

MOSCOW, Nov. 15.—Russian crown jewels now are on the way to New York, having been purchased from the Soviet Government by Norman C. Weiss, diamond merchant of New York and London. The price paid for the crown has not been made public.

U. S. COLLECTOR GOES AFTER WORLD SERIES SEAT SELLERS

Letters to 500 original purchasers of world series baseball tickets, which found their way into the hands of scalpers, were mailed today by Collector of Internal Revenue Becker, promising no prosecution if the sellers would pay 50 per cent of their profit on the tickets.

Scalping is punishable by a fine of $100, and Becker said that those who did not respond to his letters would be prosecuted.

MERCHANT SHOT BY ROBBER DIES OF HIS WOUND

Sam Yaffe, 37, Was Fired on in His Grocery at 1217 Whittier Street by Negro Thursday.

By the Associated Press.

Sam Yaffe, 37 years old, died at City Hospital yesterday of a bullet wound in the abdomen inflicted by a Negro robber in his grocery at 1217 Whittier street, Thursday evening, after the Negro's white accomplice had begged a loaf of bread.

The white man was gnawing at the loaf before a stove when the Negro entered and fired at Yaffe without warning. The pair fled with $35 in cash and Yaffe crawled to the street where he attracted passersby. At City Hospital, he became unconscious after giving detectives a brief account of the robbery. No clue to the identity of the slayer has been found.

$19,000 INSULT CAMPAIGN CONTRIBUTION BASIS OF SUIT

Corporation Counsel of Indianapolis Makes Charge in Action to Halt Utilities Merger.

By the Associated Press.

INDIANAPOLIS, Nov. 15.—Contribution of $19,000 for use in the State campaign of 1924 by Samuel and Martin Insull and Harley L. Clark, all utility operators of Chicago, was alleged in a suit filed here today to prevent action by the Public Service Commission on the proposed merger of two local electric light and power companies.

The suit was filed by Alva J. Rucker, corporation counsel of Indianapolis.

D. C. Stephenson, former grand dragon of the Ku Klux Klan; Harry Reid, president of the Interstate Commerce Commission; and Robert L. Todd, president of the Terre Haute, Indianapolis and Eastern Traction Co., were named as other contributors to the fund. The money is alleged to have been paid to Gov. Jackson and John W. McCordie, chairman of the Public Service Commission.

MAN FALLS DEAD, COMPANION IS HELD AS INQUEST WITNESS

St. Louisan on Picket Duty in Granite City Suffers Fractured Skull, Autopsy Discloses.

Frank Chesnick, 45 years old, of 1629 Angelrod street, was ordered held as a witness pending an inquest into the death of his friend, George Hirschfeld, 49 years old, 1633A Blair avenue, who fell dead Saturday in front of a Madison (Ill.) restaurant. An autopsy yesterday disclosed that Hirschfeld died of a fractured skull.

Hirschfeld was a striker at the National Stamping and Enameling Co., at Granite City. After a half-day of picket duty at the plant, he and Chesnick, also a striker, left for Madison to eat their noon-day meal. They had just emerged from a restaurant when Hirschfeld fell to the pavement.

GETS 30 YEARS FOR MURDER OF 64-YEAR-OLD WATCHMAN

Georgia Negro Pleads Guilty of Killing. Over Time of Day Argument.

Eugene McConnell, 30 years old, a Canton (Ga.) Negro, pleaded guilty to murder in the second degree before Circuit Judge Ossing today and was sentenced to 30 years in the penitentiary for killing Matthews O'Grady, a 64-year-old railroad watchman, last Aug. 17.

He had entered O'Grady's shanty at the foot of Miller street to ask the time, and when O'Grady refused to show him a watch a fight followed. McConnell stabbed the watchman in the leg with a knife. An artery was severed and O'Grady died to death. The 30-year sentence was recommended by the Circuit Attorney's office.

"FAITHFUL THREE" COMFORT DEFENDANTS AT HALL-MILLS TRIAL, BY THEIR PRESENCE

Mrs. Henry Stevens and Commander and Mrs. Carpenter Stand By the Family In Its Hour of Distress.

By DOROTHY DIX.

SOMERVILLE, N. J., Nov. 15.—A few bits of paper conjured a dead man out of his grave, and set him before us in the habit in which he lived.

These scraps of paper were the love letters that the Rev. Edward Wheeler Hall wrote to Mrs. Eleanor Mills, and that turned a shadow into a substance, for up to now the figure of the clergyman has been curiously vague. We have seen him first as the husband of a woman much older than himself for the sake of the ease and luxury and position which she could give him. We have seen him in his wife's fine home, a good-natured, easy-going, kindly, but cold man, who brought cheer into that cold and austere home.

And we have seen him, a tragic figure, lying dead, murdered under a crab apple tree.

A Curious Contract.

But these letters show you the man as he really was, a strange blend of the carnal and the spiritual of the middle-aged and the schoolboy. For in them he writes to a woman in one breath of pressing burning kisses that are liquid fire, and in the next of the beauty and comfort of prayer; he rhapsodizes over the uplifting influence of hymn upon his spirit and makes secret rendezvous with his lady love.

He betrays his own life, and covets his neighbor's wife, yet apparently sees nothing impious in ministering with unclean hands before the altar of God, for every letter is a mixture of church and desire. He is middle-aged and fat, yet he writes high-falutin sentimentalities like a schoolboy, and tells his affinity how he yearns to be her "typical king."

Wild, passionate letters they are, in which he addresses Mrs. Mills as "my own dear wonder-heart" and "my dearest dear darling," and tells how the doors of a new world have opened to them, and how they will never part again, and how at night he talks to himself about his beautiful sassy queen, and longs to crush her in his arms, and so on and so forth, to the eternal litany of lovers.

And in every letter he makes an appointment to meet her at "our road" which for them was the road that led to the grave, for these letters were written only a few weeks before the tragedy, indeed, went almost down to the very day.

Mrs. Hall in Distress.

Jim Mills listened to the reading of his wife's love letters with a little apparent interest as if they had been the captions in a moving picture, but to Mrs. Hall they were bitter listening. She bowed her head down until her face was half hidden, and not all of her fortitude could prevent her lips from trembling, or keep back the tear that she reached up her hand and furtively wiped away.

She loved her husband with the passionate devotion that reserved and repressed women so often feel for the one man on whom they lavish the whole wealth of their affection, and every revelation of his faithlessness is a fresh stab to her heart and her pride.

Perhaps Senator Simpson, the special prosecutor, felt that after a hard week's work he was unequal to the task of coping with all these mushy, lovey-dovey, bilious, and at any rate he delegated the task of reading them to Prosecutor Bergen, who evidently agrees with Mr. Barrie, who declares that he cannot make one of his characters say "darling" without wrapping his legs around a table-leg for support. For as he read each term of endearment, Mr. Bergen got redder and redder in the face until his very ears were crimson.

Small-Fry Witnesses.

The grind of the mills of justice brought out no very precious grist for either side. The milkman had seen a door open at the Hall house on the night of the murder, but whether it was a door that went into the coal closet or somewhere else he didn't know. A mail carrier had seen a Dodge sedan parked on De Russell's Lane on that night, but he had no idea of whom it belonged. Mrs. Hall's gardener, a fine upstanding old Irishman, who has been with the Stevens and Carpenter family for a generation, saw nothing, because he was busy bedding down the celery.

The leaders of the choir, a handsome woman in a handsome new coat, had never asked Mrs. Hall, whom she admitted she loved dearly, why she sent her the message that she did, that Dr. Hall was not in town on the day after the murder.

An errand boy who took clothes to the cleaner took a suit for Willie Stevens to be secured, that had spots on it, and he didn't know whether Willie was in the habit of dropping his food on his waistcoat or not. The Sheriff told about finding the bodies, picking up the cards and the papers about them and once more, the little bit of postboard with the smudge of a fingerprint on it, was dragged out and inspected.

The Faithful Three.

And in the dullness I fell to watching again the silent three who sit side by side, so still, so unmoved, so calm, so proud, captains of their souls. And behind them the three faithful ones, Henry Stevens' wife, tall, slender, graceful, her fine sensitive face worn with anxiety, but resolute and cheerful. There is something symbolic in the way she sits right behind her husband, as she has been right behind him during all their 25 years of married life. Pals they are, and comrades. She doesn't speak to him very often in court, but every now and then she lays her hand on his shoulder, just as said.

6 DROWNED AS POLICE RAID HOUSEBOAT PARTY

Skiff in Which Revelers Try to Escape Upsets in Mississippi River.

By the Associated Press.

ST. PAUL, Minn., Nov. 15.—A party aboard a houseboat on the Mississippi River here ended last night when six of the merry makers, attempting to escape from the law, were drowned in the river when a small duck boat sank. Three other persons were rescued from the wreckage and are recovering. Two bodies have been found. They were those of Michael Hogan, 25 years old, and an unidentified woman.

The others believed to have been drowned were Charles Randall, owner of the houseboat, Nick Becker, and an unidentified man and an unidentified woman.

The revelers on the houseboat tried to flee when two policemen appeared in response to a call from a neighboring boat which reported that a drunken fight was in progress on the Randall craft.

NOLTE WANTS PRICE PAID PUT ON REALTY TRANSFERS

Comptroller Will Ask Next Legislature to Pass Law Compelling Payment of $1 and Other Valuable Considerations.

"The sum of $1 and other valuable considerations" will figure in real estate transfers less frequently if a reform planned by Comptroller Nolte is put through the next Missouri Legislature. Nolte will ask the Legislature to pass a law requiring that the actual price paid for real estate be stated in all transfers recorded.

He wants this information primarily to help assessors in their work, but thinks it will be a good thing also for the general public and for the realty business. Nolte was a real estate dealer before he became Comptroller, and he is still interested in a realty firm.

"The market price of stocks and bonds is a matter for the public," Nolte said today, "so why not real estate? A true value showing in realty deeds would protect the public from deception, and would stimulate investment in realty." The Comptroller said he would have his proposal presented to the Legislature through the city's legislative agent to be selected later by the Board of Estimate and Appointment.

Next to her is Mrs. Edwin Carpenter, lovely, charming, gracious, always beautifully dressed, always at her post, cheering Mrs. Hall, and next to her Commander Carpenter, as fine and upstanding an officer and a gentleman as the American navy has ever produced, and who is standing by as gallantly in his family's hour of need as he did in his country's when he sank the first German submarine.

"What do you think of the pig woman's illness?" I asked the faithful three.

"Nobody is praying so fervently for her recovery as we are; we want her to come on the stand and tell her story so that we can refute it, and clear our name forever of this stigma upon it," they said.

that is followed by a high percentage of fatalities would be necessary. He considers her health to be as good now as it ever will be, and feels that she probably has only a short time to live, whether or not an operation is performed.

Mrs. Gibson says she was riding a mule in search of corn thieves on the night of the murder, and saw Mrs. Frances Stevens, Hall, widow of the slain clergyman, and her two brothers, Henry and Willie Stevens. Her story was discredited four years ago by a grand jury, but the testimony in the present trial is built largely around what she is expected to tell. She collapsed when she saw her mother in court and was informed that her mother had been called by the defense to attack the credibility of her testimony.

LAFAYETTE YOUNG, EDITOR AND ONCE U. S. SENATOR, DIES

Union. He lived to see hundreds of employees in the various departments that he had once conducted practically unassisted.

Mr. Young married Miss Josephine Bolton on March 20, 1870. They had three children, Lafayette Young Jr., and Harold Young of Des Moines, and Mrs. Nellie Brown Young Herrick of Olean, N. Y. Mrs. Herrick died in February, 1923.

On the death of Senator Jonathan P. Dolliver of Iowa, Oct. 11, 1910, Mr. Young was appointed United States Senator and served in that capacity until April, 1911. Long before his service in the Senate, however, Mr. Young was a national figure in Republican politics. It was he who nominated Theodore Roosevelt for Vice President at the national convention in Philadelphia in 1900. These two men were close personal friends for years.

During the Spanish-American War, Mr. Young was a newspaper correspondent with Shafter's army in Cuba. Later he was a member of the Taft mission to the Philippine Islands. In 1913 he was a correspondent in the Balkan War, and in 1915 he spent four months at the seat of war in Europe.

It was during this trip abroad that he was held as a spy by the Austrians, who thought that the name "Lafayette" indicated a direct connection with France. The United States Government was tained his release. Some months after the armistice, the King of Belgium conferred the Order of Leopold II on Mr. Young.

Several years ago Senator Young turned over the general management of the Des Moines Capital to his son, Lafayette Young Jr., and since that time had devoted his attention to writing editorials.

SWINGS INTO PROPELLER OF AIRPLANE, BUT LIVES

Two Thousand See Flying Stunt-ster's Narrow Escape at Hasbrouck Heights, N. J.

NEW YORK, Nov. 15.—Two thousand spectators at the Teeterboro flying field, near Hasbrouck Heights, N. J., gasped as Jack Parks, 21-year-old aerial acrobat employed by a flying circus, chinned himself and danced on the wing of a De Havilland plane 300 feet in the air. Then came the big stunt.

Out on the wing he tied one end of a rope to his ankle and the other to a wing support, then, simulating a fall, he dived off into space. The rope tightened with a jerk.

The first pendulum swing carried Parks headfirst into the whirling propeller. For a moment the acrobat hung dazed. Then, with a twist of his body, he caught the rope with his hand and climbed slowly to the wing again. The crowd saw that his head and face were covered with blood.

Clyde Pangburn, the pilot, landed the plane and Parks was rushed to a Hackensack hospital. There physicians said last night the acrobat apparently had suffered only a few lacerations.

DOWNTOWN Y. M. C. A. BUILDING OPENS TODAY

New $1,500,000 Structure,
Third Largest in U. S., Has Accommodations for 400.

The $1,500,000 downtown Y. M. C. A. building at Sixteenth and Locust streets was opened today for inspection and registration of new members and applicants for physical education with the swimming pool, one of the two gymnasiums and one of the six handball courts completed.

Remainder of the athletic facilities will be ready before the end of the week. Four of the six residence floors of the 10-story structure are open. The fifth is to be opened the end of this week, and the sixth by Dec. 1. Residence accommodations are for 412 men, with 328 single and 42 double rooms. A shower is provided for every 12 men.

The building, which is the third largest "Y" in the United States, is planned to take care of a membership of 6000. A Business Men's Club, limited to 400, will have special lockers, Turkish baths and other privileges for an extra fee. Boys will have a special entrance and will not have use of gymnasium facilities at the same time with men.

Swimming instruction will be by C. H. Redmon of Bowling Green, Ky. Heating the water to 70 degrees and treating it with chlorine was begun Saturday. A vacuum apparatus to clean the floor, filters and constant circulation complete the measures for providing good water for swimming. The pool is of white tile, 75 by 25 feet, sloping from four feet to 12 feet deep.

Physique and health of each user of the athletic equipment must undergo examination, which will be basis for advice on correctional exercise. Special classes may be organized to meet almost any demand at any hour. Claude A. Neaves, former director at Columbus and Minneapolis, is physical director, assisted by R. W. Foster, formerly of Columbus; Carl Stair, formerly of Otterbein College; Redmon, and several part-time assistants.

Dedication Next Month.
Dedication is to take place next month. Day and night schools, with 15 classrooms, able to handle 2000 students, already are open under direction of W. J. See, former principal of the Garfield School. There is an auditorium on the second floor, besides 10 private rooms for dinners and committee meetings on the first four floors.

A cafeteria to seat 150, a soda fountain and grill room, a reading room, lounge room, billiard hall, tailor shop and barber shop also are provided. The executive sec-

tary of the downtown "Y" is

A. F. Holmer, who held a similar position in Minneapolis.

QUARREL OVER $2000 ESTATE CAUSES KILLING

Former Mayor of Madison, Mo., Shoots Relative in Argument Over Small Farm.

SLAYER DECLARES HE WAS THREATENED

First Degree Murder Charge Filed Against George Farrell by Monroe County Prosecutor.

Special to the Post-Dispatch. MADISON, Mo., Nov. 15.—George Farrell, 70 years old, attorney and former Mayor of Madison, shot and killed his second cousin, Lester Farrell, 39, a farmer, on the main street here Saturday afternoon. An argument between the two men is said to have arisen over the estate of Minerva Farrell, grandmother of Lester Farrell. George Farrell is a petitioner for possession of the 80 acres of land comprising the estate and the two men had been on unfriendly terms. Under an agreement at the time of Mrs. Minerva Farrell's death two years ago, Lester Farrell's father, Thomas, received the land as compensation for caring for the aged woman during the later years of her life. Although the other heirs agreed to the arrangement at the time, George Farrell purchased the legal interest of several and brought partition proceedings. A public auction under the suit is set for Nov. 29, at Paris. The value of the land is estimated at only $25 an acre.

Says He Was Threatened. George Farrell told authorities that he shot Lester in self-defense. He said that Lester accosted him as he came out of the postoffice and threatened to maul him. "I told him to keep away, but he grabbed me," Farrell continued. "I am old and rather weak and I couldn't break away, so I pulled out the gun and shot him."

George Farrell served two terms as Mayor here several years ago. He is a widower and lived with his daughter. Lester Farrell is survived by his widow and year-old child. Funeral services will be held at 2 p. m. today, with burial at Holliway, near here.

Left Victim on Sidewalk. The shooting occurred in front of the Warford drug store as the pair was walking down the street together. Because of inclement weather, few persons were on the street at the time. George Farrell, who was elected Justice of the Peace of Marion Township at the recent election, drew a revolver and fired three shots at Lester, witnesses assert. The bullets entered the younger man's body near the heart.

Leaving his victim lying on the sidewalk, George Farrell walked into the John Forrest drug store, saying: "John, call the Sheriff to come and get me. I shot a man awhile ago."

Farrell then walked to his home, followed by Deputy Joe Baker of Madison, who stayed with him till the arrival of Sheriff Peake from Paris, Mo. Farrell then was removed from Madison to the Monroe County Jail at Paris.

An inquest was considered unnecessary and Prosecuting Attorney Nolen of Paris came here and filed a first-degree murder charge.

SALOONKEEPER WHO SHOT MAN HELD FOR HOMICIDE

Castrenio Locigno Wounded Raymond Haemmerle Four Times During Row in His Saloon.

A Coroner's verdict of homicide was returned today against Castrenio Locigno, 40 years old, proprietor of a saloon at 2400 North Jefferson avenue, where he shot and killed Raymond Haemmerle, 23, an electrician, of 2563 Benton street at 1:55 p. m. yesterday.

Haemmerle was unarmed. He was wounded four times, in the neck, shoulder, back and left thigh.

On advice of counsel, Locigno did not testify. He told police yesterday that he obtained a revolver from a drawer behind the bar after Haemmerle had threatened his life and moved as if to draw a revolver from a hip pocket.

Cause of the Quarrel

Everett Wheeler of 2337A North Market street, and William Coughlin of 2521 Mullany street, were at the bar with Haemmerle when Locigno arrived and relieved his bartender, who left at once. Soon Locigno and Haemmerle were quarrelling over the fact that Locigno had ejected Haemmerle from the saloon two months previously.

Haemmerle was belligerent and appeared to have been drinking. Wheeler and Coughlin testified. Wheeler said Locigno invited Haemmerle to have a drink, and Haemmerle answered:

"I wouldn't drink here under any circumstances. I came here to get satisfaction. I'll get a gun and shoot up the place."

Didn't See the Shooting

About this time Wheeler started out of the saloon, and Coughlin followed. They heard the shots, but did not see what occurred in the saloon. They did not see Haemmerle make any move as if to draw a weapon.

"UNCLE JOE" CANNON'S BIER

Procession of Mourners Paying Final Respects Continues Today at Danville, Ill.

DANVILLE, Ill., Nov. 15.—Friends of "Uncle Joe" Cannon continued today to view his body in his home here, where the casket is guarded by eight past commanders of the Curtin Redden Post of the American Legion who will also act as pallbearers at the funeral services tomorrow afternoon.

Beginning at 10 a. m. yesterday and until 5 p. m. a steady line shuffled along, unmindful of the intermittent showers and wet streets, and intent only upon paying a final respectful visit to the former Speaker. More than 6000 persons filed past the casket yesterday.

The file of friends entered the Cannon home through a north door, passed into the living room, through the dining room and into

Mr. Cannon's bedroom, where they were permitted to pause for a moment.

No honorary pallbearers will be named for the funeral. The simple service at 3 o'clock in the First Methodist Church will be in charge of the Rev. Thomas N. Ewing, pastor, assisted by the Rev. Ralph B. Hindman of the First Presbyterian Church.

The Boy Scouts and a delegation of Masons from Athelston Lodge will serve as escort for the casket to be borne by eight World War veterans. The pallbearers will be Caspar Platt, Richard Johnson,

Dr. Frank Barton, Ben Collier, D. M. Swain, Paul Millikin and Ray Carter.

Captain Youngwife finds the Chest of her fondest Quest

SHE sailed and sailed the shopping seas . . . hoping some day to find it. But always the treasure eluded her.

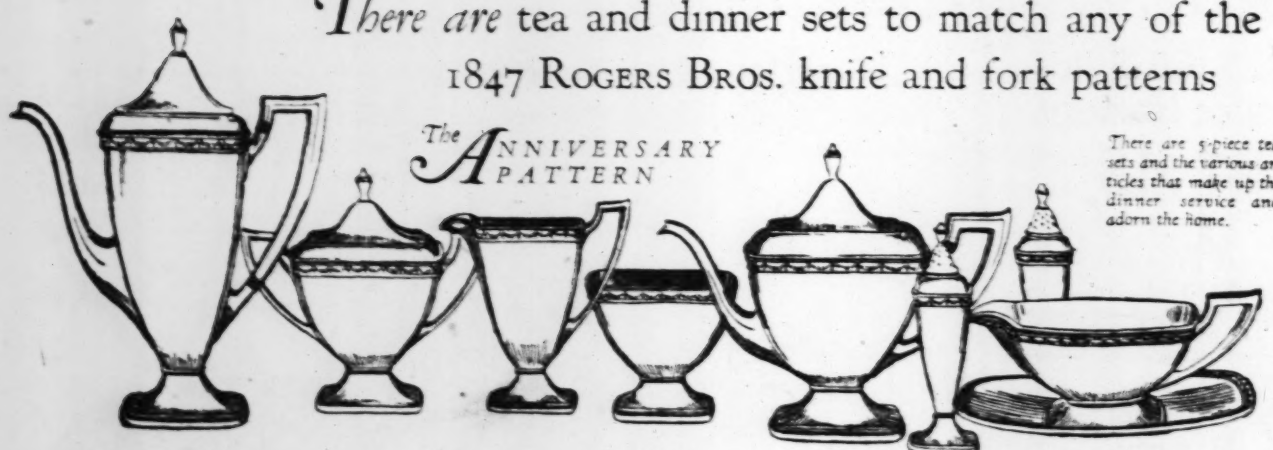

"Sixes" and "twelves" were everywhere. But never a set of "eights".

"Twelve is too many", she sadly sighed, "for my normal table needs. And six doesn't provide a spare or two for the unexpected guest."

But time and tides are kindly to Captains fair and patient. In a gorgeous chest, she beheld, one day, her long-sought "PIECES OF EIGHT". Eight of each, instead of the usual sixes or twelves, in hollow handle dinner knives with stainless steel blades, dinner forks, dessert spoons and tea spoons, with a sugar shell and a butter knife to complete her "just right" service.

And now all voyagers on the shopping seas may share this selfsame treasure. For the new PIECES OF EIGHT Set in 1847 ROGERS BROS. Silverplate is now being featured at THE SILVERWARE SHOW holding sway this month at the stores of all good silverware dealers.

There are tea and dinner sets to match any of the 1847 ROGERS BROS. knife and fork patterns

COMMUNITY FUND CONTRIBUTIONS GO TO $432,000

Workers on Job, Despite Rain, Visit Many Homes Sunday and Obtain Pledges.

Subscriptions to the Community Fund, announced today at the beginning of the final week of the fund campaign, amount to $432,000, or 25 per cent of the total sought, $1,728,000. The announcement was made in advance of the daily luncheon for the fund workers at Hotel Statler. The fund is to maintain 50 relief and service agencies for the year 1927.

The amount obtained includes many subscriptions which were obtained in yesterday's rainy-day canvass of residences. The bad weather made it possible for the canvassers to find most of their "prospects" at home.

Minister Speaks on Fund.
The Rev. Dr. Henry Alford Porter, preaching yesterday at the Third Baptist Church, spoke for the Community Fund, saying: "It rests upon the churches of the metropolitan area to spiritualize this campaign, to speak to the soul of the city. We love this city of ours. We would say of it, as Samuel Johnson said of London, 'When a man is tired of St. Louis, he is tired of life.'"

"St. Louis has a soul. We are tempted to measure cities by size rather than by spirit. The real question is not how many noses the census man can count, but how fine is the public spirit, and how intelligent and righteous and kindly are the folk. It was the custom of our Anglo-Saxon forefathers to erect a cross in the center of their cities and towns, and to transact their business, and live their daily life under the shadow of this sacred symbol. We cannot hope for success unless we bring into the center of this noble enterprise a mighty religious motive. It is this motive which must permeate and control all our efforts and to which we must appeal."

"Fifty charitable objects mean little to us. Their very bulk staggers thought and quenches imagination. Picture humanity in its various needs, its sorrows and fears and baffled hopes. Our gifts are not made to soulless institutions. Picture your gifts as gifts to the hungry, the suffering, the despairing—gifts to widowed, fatherless little children looking with pathetic wonder into the world's strange face; gifts to little babies whose clinging fingers have no mother's hand to clasp in the dark; gifts to shelterless age, about whose lives beat the wind and rain of life's dark December; gifts for the glory of a finer boyhood and girlhood; gifts for all that makes St. Louis kindly and noble."

"This is the light and this the spirit in which to answer, 'How much am I expected to give?' And let no gift be merely a contribution but a warm-hearted human sharing of ourselves with those who have not, for the gift without the giver is bare."

Indorsements of the Community Fund campaign have been issued by Mayor Miller and Gov. Baker. "A gift to the Community Fund," the Mayor says in his letter of indorsement, "is a contribution to the prosperity and well-being of our community. It is not alone charity, but good business, for St. Louis to respond, thus keeping the character of our growing citizens high and protecting property values by the mitigation of poverty and consequent reduction of criminal intent."

Another appropriation FOR 25 Miles of Second Track costing $3,361,000

The great task of American railroad building goes uninterrupted on, evidencing itself in bettered road conditions, bettered equipment, and a constant and successful striving on the part of the steam carriers to provide superior freight and passenger service.

The tremendous investments—averaging more than $700,000,000 per year—on the part of the American railroads, not only keep busy the wheels of industry (American railroads are the largest buyers of steel, lumber, coal and many other essential products of the Nation), but they serve to demonstrate the determination on the part of railroad managements to further improve the service on a transportation system that is already the best in the World.

It will be of particular interest to the patrons of the Louisville & Nashville Railroad to learn that its appropriations, expended or authorized for the first nine months of 1926, amount to about $39,000,000. Such improvements, in addition to the second-track work pictured above, include additional locomotives and freight and passenger cars, and various other projects designed to improve its transportation system.

QUEEN MARIE SEES STEEL PLANT AT GARY, IND.

Passers of Derogatory Handbills During Her Address to Chicago Jews Arrested.

By the Associated Press.
CHICAGO, Nov. 15.—Quitting the city which she inspected yesterday from Gold Coast to Ghetto, Queen Marie of Rumania visited the steel mills at Gary, Ind.

At South Shore Country Club, Charles J. Vopicka, former Minister to the Balkan States, was host of a 1 o'clock luncheon, after which the program called for her return to Chicago for receptions at the University of Chicago, the Hyde Park Y. M. C. A., the Chicago Y. ing-in hospital and the Art Institute. Tonight she will be the Executive Committee's dinner guest at the Casino Club.

Starting before noon yesterday, the Queen went to Lincoln Park, where thousands of people stood in the rain to see her place a wreath at the foot of the Lincoln monument. After luncheon at the Lake shore drive mansion of Mrs. McCormick, she visited St. Mary's Orthodox Rumanian Church, then to the Synagogue of the First Rumanian Congregation of Jews.

Answers Plea of Jews.

Judge Harry Fisher of the Cook County Superior Court, at the synagogue, alluded to recent protests that Jews in Rumania are not treated equally with other classes. He expressed a hope that "our people in your country will soon be permitted to share in the prosperity which we feel will come to Rumania."

Replying, the Queen said: "I am pleased to be able to take back to Rumania news of the way you have received me today. It will be a great satisfaction to the King, who considers you a very dear part of his people. I hope you will always remember that this has been said by the Queen herself."

Three men and three women distributing handbills attacking the Queen, to the crowd about the synagogue during the Queen's presence, were arrested on charges of disorderly conduct, and were released in bond of $50 each. The pamphlets charged workers were imprisoned and murdered in Rumania, and spoke of "extravagant orgies" in the royal court.

It was dusk when she reached a hotel, to meet others of Rumanian nativity at a reception given by her countrymen of Illinois. At night a ballet was given in her honor.

In a radio address over stations WJJD and WEBB the Queen said: "You hear your rooms much more than I am accustomed to." Samuel Hill, host to the Queen in the Pacific Northwest arrived in Chicago Saturday and departed for the East last night declaring that "everything was adjusted." Hill, who was involved in a dispute with persons on the "Royal Rumanian," was a guest yesterday at a luncheon given by Mrs. Rockefeller McCormick and sat at the Queen's table.

To Sail Dec. 11.

As announced Saturday, the Queen has decided to cut short her American tour by two weeks, sailing for Europe Dec. 11 instead of Dec. 24 as planned. This change, it is announced, was made on the cable request of King Ferdinand, who wished to have his family home for Christmas. This arrangement will permit Princess Elena to celebrate her eighteenth birthday at home. The cable message also detailed Ferdinand's speech in opening Parliament in Bucharest, in which he referred with great gratification to the manifestations which have marked the Queen's visit to America. Rumania, he said, never had stood so well in her relations with foreign countries and the situation at home was improving steadily. The Queen's revised itinerary cancels her projected Florida trip.

Army Flyer Weds in Plane.

By the Associated Press.
GALVESTON, Tex., Nov. 15.—Miss Fay Phantom of "Brooklyn, Mass., and Lieut. Chester Dawson of the third attack group, Army Air Service, were married here in a large transport plane, which carried a wedding party of seven high above the Gulf of Mexico. Dawson is stationed at Fort Crockett.

PASTOR KILLS HIS WIFE, 4 CHILDREN AND SELF

Only Survivor of Wyoming Family 18-Year-Old Son Attending School in Missouri.

By the Associated Press
SOUTH TORRINGTON, Wyo., Nov. 15.—The Rev. J. B. Minort, 45 years old, pastor of the Baptist church here, early yesterday shot and killed his wife, 40, and four of his five children, ranging in age from 4 to 15 years. He then committed suicide.
Mrs. Minort and the children, with the exception of one son, Hubert, were slain as they slept. The mother was killed with a shotgun and the children with a revolver. Hubert was shot down in his mother's bedroom.
In addition to his duties as a minister, Mr. Minort was police judge and manager of a grain elevator. Several years ago he was humane officer here.

The Rev. Mr. Minort, in his sermons, had frequently assailed "wagging tongues" and bitterly assailed those who spread gossip.
Minort served seven years in the Missouri state prison beginning in 1904 for second degree murder of an aged miner at Riverton, Mo. In prison he began to study the Bible and upon his release began to preach. In July, 1924, he was appointed state humane officer of Wyoming, but resigned when he became involved in other difficulties, Mann act charges being filed against him in connection with a trip to Scotts Bluff, Neb.

After Minort had slain his family, he wrote a letter, later taking the letter he charged he had been forced by two men last Sunday to occupy a room in a Bayard, Neb., hotel with a young woman, which resulted later in his pleading guilty to charges of disturbing the peace. Receipt of this news here is believed to have resulted in the murders and suicide.
The one surviving member of the family, 18-year-old son, John Minort, a student at William Jewell College, Liberty, Mo., is en route here. In his letter, addressed "To the public" the father praised the youth and asked that the family furniture and car be sold and the proceeds used to help defray the college expenses of the youth.
The bodies were found at the home by an undertaker to whom Minort telephoned just before taking his own life.

Senator W. M. Butler Special to the Post-Dispatch.
WASHINGTON, Nov. 15.—Senator William M. Butler (Rep.) in Massachusetts, spent today in his campaign, he reported, received no contributions.
Reed Smoot (Rep.) of Utah, $2500 and received no contributions. In Nevada, Ray T. (Dem.) spent $9015 and received contributions amounting to $1000 in his unsuccessful campaign.

A GREATER TELEPHONE SYSTEM FOR A GREATER ST. LOUIS

PLEASE USE THE TELEPHONE DIRECTORY

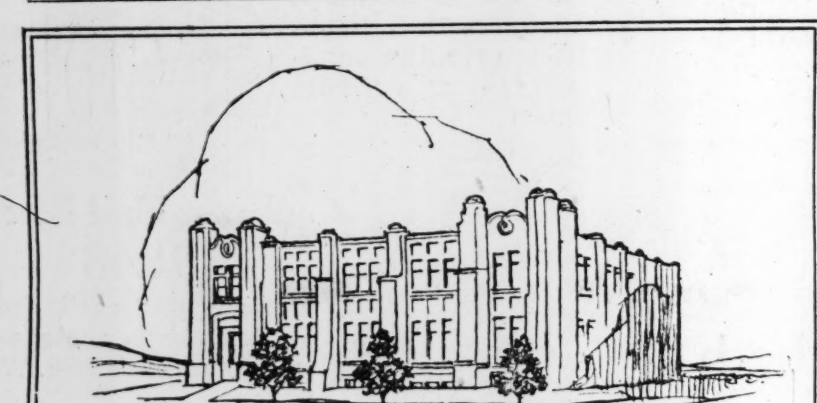

Telephone News

Published by the Southwestern Bell Telephone Company to inform its subscribers of the telephone development of a Greater St. Louis

PLEASE USE THE TELEPHONE DIRECTORY

Vol. II No. 5

NUMBER OF DIAL TELEPHONES IN CITY IS INCREASING DAILY

TO SERVE NORTHWEST AREA

The new dial telephone office, to be built at Hamilton Avenue and Natural Bridge Road, will be the fourth central office built to serve dial telephones in St. Louis.
This office will serve more than 8000 dial telephones in the Cabany, Colfax, and Forest areas. It will probably be completed in the latter part of 1927.

7,200 Dial Instruments Cut Into Service in "Jefferson" Area

With the cutover of the Jefferson machine switching office at Washington boulevard and Spring avenue, 7200 dial telephones were cut into service. The remainder of dial telephones to be served from this office will be cut into service at the rate of about seventy-five per day. This work will be completed by the end of the year, when there will be about 11,500 dial telephones serving the Jefferson area.

Dial telephone apparatus is now being installed in the new Hilland office, at the southwest corner of Manchester and Latham avenues. This office will be cut over early in 1927, and will be equipped to serve 8,000 dial telephones.

Laclede-Prospect now has nearly 12,000 dial telephones. By next Spring, when the Jefferson cutover will be completed, and the Hilland office cut into service, there will be more than 30,000 dial telephones in St. Louis.

This will be nearly one-sixth of the total number of telephones in the St. Louis metropolitan area.

YOU CAN CALL COLLECT

The privilege of "reversing the charges" on a long distance call, that is, placing the call collect, has always been of great advantage to those away from home who wished to have the charges for the call placed on their own telephone bill. Formerly, however, this privilege was allowed only on person-to-person calls.

Under the new long distance rules, this reversal of charges privilege has been extended to include station-to-station calls, which, of course, cost considerably less than person-to-person calls.

It doesn't matter if the call is placed during the day or during the evening and night reduced rate periods, the charges may be reversed just the same, as long as the charge is 25 cents or more.

The United States has ten times more telephones in proportion to population than any other country on the globe.

SHORT CUTS

If your telephone is out of order, or works poorly, call Repair Clerk. It is up to her to see that it is fixed.

If some particular call goes wrong, ask for Supervisor. She's right on the spot to give bawky calls special attention.

If your service as a whole seems below par, talk it over with Chief Operator. Making service better is her job.

These calls cut corners. They go straight to the responsible people involved. They get results.

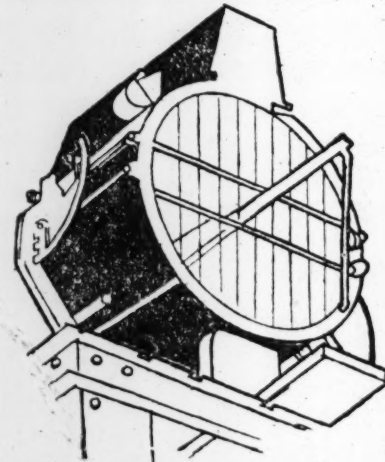

DIVIDENDS

Almost 400,000 people received dividend checks of the American Telephone and Telegraph Company on October 15th.

A large percentage of these shareholders are women, and about 65,000 are Bell System employees.

In all, more than 800,000 people share in the ownership and earnings of the nationwide telephone system through their ownership of Bell System securities.

SEARCHLIGHT

A 300,000,000 candle power searchlight is now located on top of the new telephone building.

The light is three feet in diameter across the drum, and will rotate automatically at either of two speeds; one-quarter of a revolution per minute, and five revolutions per minute.

On clear nights this light, which is 385 feet above the ground, is said to be visible from a distance of 150 miles.

It is equal in intensity to 6,000,000 ordinary 50-watt lamps, such as are used in the home.

The light will serve as a guide to aviators nearing St. Louis.

REDUCED RATES START AT 7 P. M.

You can now place a reduced rate station-to-station long distance call as early as 7 p. m.

Formerly if you wanted to take advantage of the reduced rates, you had to wait until 8:30 p. m. Now, from 7 p. m. to 8:30 p. m. there is a 25 per cent reduction on all station-to-station calls where the day station-to-station rate is 40 cents or more, with a minimum reduced rate of 35 cents.

This earlier reduced rate period was introduced for the convenience of subscribers. Under the old schedule, many a call placed at 8:30 p. m. received the report, "they don't answer," the called party had gone out for the evening. Under the new plan, you may call at 7 p. m., an hour when most people are at home.

Starting at 8:30 p. m. and continuing until 4:30 a. m. there is a 50 per cent reduction on station-to-station calls. There is no further discount at midnight, as there was under the former schedule.

DON'T HANG UP TOO SOON

"The party who called you has hung up." If you have heard these words after answering your telephone, you know what an abandoned call is—when the calling subscriber hangs up before his call is completed. If a call is not answered promptly, it is often assumed that no one is at home.

You can improve your telephone service and that of your friends if you will answer all incoming calls promptly, and if you will wait a reasonable time before hanging up when you are calling some one else. Give them time to reach the telephone. Don't hang up too soon.

STATION-TO-STATION CALLS COST LESS

Senator W. M. Butler Spent $4000 in his unsuccessful campaign. WASHINGTON, Nov. 15.—Senator William M. Butler, (Rep.), defeated in his race for re-election in Massachusetts, spent $4000 in his campaign today. He received no contributions. Senator Wood Smoot, (Rep.), of Utah, spent $2000 and received no contributions. In Nevada, Ray T. Baker, (Dem.), spent $9015 and received contributions amounting to $1000 in his unsuccessful campaign.

HENRI CHOUTEAU SPENT $1368 IN CAMPAIGN

Defeated Candidate for Congress and Others File Accounts.

Henri Chouteau, defeated Republican candidate for Congress from the Eleventh district, spent $1368 in his campaign, according to his expense account filed today with the Recorder of Deeds. The largest item, $451, was for printing. Other expense accounts were as follows:

Herman Bader, Republican Clerk of Circuit Court for Criminal Causes, $1077, including $800 assessment to City Committee; Elmer Moore, Republican Justice of Peace, Fifth District, $220; Harry C. Meyers, Justice of the Peace, same district, $191; Gabriel Roth, Republican Constable of Fifth, $198, and Ira Dorsey, also Constable, $192; John F. Byrne, Democratic Constable of Sixth District, $235 and John J. Tatten, Democratic Justice of the Peace, $45.

Byrne and Tatten as Democrats were not required to pay the $100 assessment demanded of Republican candidates for similar jobs by the City Committee.

William J. Blesse, successful candidate for the short term Circuit Judgeship spent $386, according to his expense account. Others accounts filed today were: Horace Beedle, Republican State Representative from Second District, $117; Langston Harrison, Republican Constable of Fourth District, $427; John W. Shine, defeated Republican candidate for Justice of the Peace, Third District, $324; Crittenden Clark, Republican Justice of the Peace, Fourth District, $470; Annie M. Evans, defeated candidate for Republican nomination for Judge of Court of Criminal Correction, $444; Probate Judge Holcamp, $954, including $750 assessment to City Committee; Nick Polito, defeated Republican candidate for Justice of the Peace, Sixth District, $241.

SISTER GUIDONIA SPENCER DIES

Funeral services for Sister Guidonia Spencer, a member of the Order of Sisters of Loretta for 52 years, who died yesterday of pneumonia, will be held at 9 a. m. tomorrow from Webster College, Webster Groves, to Calvary Cemetery.

Sister Guidonia was 74 years old and was born in Tipperary County, Ireland. She came to this country when 15 years old and, after entering the Loretta Order, taught in the academy at Loretta, Ky., until 1900, when she was transferred to Florissant. When fire destroyed the Florissant academy in 1916, Sister Guidonia went to Webster College. She lost her sight several years ago. Surviving are a sister, Miss Josephine Spencer, and a nephew, the Rev. John P. Spencer, pastor of St. Roch's Church.

DOES OF CALLES TRYING TO START REVOLT IN MEXICO

The Associated Press.

MEXICO CITY, Nov. 15.—(AP)—The Government is endeavoring to start a movement against the overthrow of President Calles is evident from the newspapers which record the activities of rebel and bandit groups in various parts of the country.

The War Department asserts that the revolutionary outbreaks do not offer military problem because the rebel groups are small and lack unity of action. In a major case of the cases of revolutionaries said to be bandits who are waiting for the opportunity offered them by the religious unrest to become active.

The War Department says it is the situation under control. Federal soldiers in motor lorries are patrolling the highways in places where the rebels are active. Passenger and freight trains are being under military escort. The troops are being held in readiness at various points along the railways to be rushed to meet where rebels or bandits hold trains.

Rebels Kill Soldiers, Sack Town, and Escape.

VERA CRUZ, Nov. 15.—(AP)—A group of bandits descended upon town of Randerilla, near Jalisco, and surprised and killed a garrison of 12 soldiers. The bandits also wounded several citizens, sacked business houses and escaped.

A large force of troops has been dispatched to seek the perpetrators of the outrage.

Rebels Reported Shot by Federal Soldiers.

PASO, Tex., Nov. 15.—(AP)—A revolutionary movement in northern Mexico are believed to have been partly revealed by the reported slaying of nine rebels by federal troops in the State of Chihuahua. Rumors that Gen. Nicholas Fernandez, former chief of staff for the Mexican Revolution, was one of the leaders of the movement have been denied. The reports credited Gen. Fernandez with leading a small detachment of heavily armed men to Mexico Nov. 1. This, it was said, was part of a scheme to utilize thousands of Villa's followers who settled on Chihuahua when the bandit leader was slain.

Gen. Lopez admitted that details had been ordered to search for the rebel band. Last night he declared nine of the band had been killed, according to official reports, and that Maj. Jose Gonzalez, his chief of staff, was among the others. He denied the state who was in command of the rebels.

Arms Assembled.

Shooting of two Mexicans held charges of transporting munitions to rebel factions, when they attempted to escape last week from federal troops, was the first indication of extensive investigation of a revolt. Lino Delgado, slain when he tried to escape, was a member of the assembly of arms. Lopez said.

Delgado's reports that the rebels were planning a surprise attack on Juarez. It was persistent rumor that 100 men were to attack Juarez as soon as a day payroll was available. Delgado was said to have been recruiting men. He was reported to have ample funds.

Delgado's reports that the rebels were going to join the Yaqui Indian in Sonora. He was seen by the details of the plot. The city of the prisoner had been secret, he said, to prevent the escape of Huerta from learning of the revolt.

Trains Carry Guards. Delgado also has attempted to make the recent visit of Gen. C. Medina, traveling inspector of the Federal Army, with the intention of the revolt. Medina has been doubled on leaving Nogales for interior. Trains now carry 100 men with machine guns. These are

THREE FASCISTS SHOT IN RAID ON ROYALIST PAPER IN PARIS

PARIS, Nov. 15.—Three persons were seriously wounded in a fight when 50 French fascists invaded the premises of the Action Francaise, Royalist newspaper, yesterday. One group took possession of the paper's lodge, while the others rushed up the staircase brandishing weapons. Before they could reach the office of Chief Editor Marras, reporters and subeditors started throwing inkstands, chairs and paper weights at the invaders.
The fascists kept on, however, and had almost gained the main office when the defenders drew revolvers.

The fight was furious for a few moments, while the invaders were driven step by step down the stairway. The three casualties, Fascists, shot through the lungs, were found in a heap at the foot of the stairs. Fascists less seriously wounded were borne away by comrades.

Leon Daudet, leader of the Royalist party, was arrested, and a revolver in his pocket was taken from him, but the Magistrate to whom he appealed ordered his release and restitution of the pistol.

The fascists charge the Royalists with being in the pay of Luigi Federzoni, Italian Minister of Colonies, until recently Minister of the Interior.

precautions resulted, military officials said, because of activities of Yaqui Indians in Sonora. Leaves of absence have been limited to 24 hours for both officers and men.

Jenral Palafox, known as the spokesman for De La Huerta here, last night said the two men shot by federalists last week were unknown to him. He added that De La Huerta has great friendship for the Yaquis.

Many Mexican residents here believe that an outbreak is unlikely at this time. They claim a serious revolt would be more apt to occur after crops have been harvested.

Desire to take advantage of the religious dissension in Mexico has been advanced as one of the reasons for planning a revolt at this time. Gen. Fernandez, however, is said to have been in accord with Anti-Catholic demonstrations.

SHARP EARTHQUAKE SHOCKS IN ALASKA AND CHILE

Temblors Are Accompanied by Rumbles in Both Places; No Damage Reported.

By the Associated Press.

CORODOVA, Alaska, Nov. 15.—An earthquake of unusual violence was felt here at 8:20 o'clock last night.
Pacific Coast time.

The temblor was accompanied by a distinct rumbling. Buildings shook and antennae masts of the United States Naval Radio Station, 14 miles from Cordova, swayed a foot.

As is usual in Alaska, where buildings are mostly of one story and well built, no damage was reported. Johnson, Calif.,

Indications that the disturbance was widespread were given when the Naval Radio Station at Kori-ak, 225 miles southwest of here, on Kodiak Island, reported a severe shock was felt there at the same time.

BRITISH STRIKE, NEAR END, HAS COST $800,000,000

Living Standard Lower, Heavy Taxes Necessary and World Markets Are Lost.

Copyright, 1926, by the Press and Pulitzer Publishing Co. (the New York World and Post-Dispatch).

LONDON, Nov. 15.—The coal stoppage will not end officially this week, as was hoped, but reference of the decision on the Government terms to the men with a recommendation for acceptance practically means that the union leaders have surrendered. Several hundred thousand men are expected to resume work this week pending the result of the voting.

Now that the economic situation which has existed since May 1 is about to be eased, the newspapers are attempting to calculate the cost of the strike. The Westminster Gazette declares the direct cash loss exceeds $800,000,000. Other results are that the standard of living of the whole people will be lowered for years, heavy additional taxes are necessary, trade unions have lost most of their funds, overseas markets have been lost and the cost of living has gone up 8 per cent.

Home Secretary Johnson-Hicks, in a speech at Barnsley, declared the stoppage "has very nearly ruined the country," and "has involved us in loss even greater than that of the South African war, a loss up to the present of something well over $400,000,000 ($5,000,000,000). This figure, however, includes the indirect loss to trade as well as the actual cash outlay by the Government and local taxpayers in relieving the unemployed."

ATTENDANTS ON SICK MONARCH CROWD VILLAGE IN JAPAN

Chicago Daily News. Copyright, 1926.

HAYAMA, Japan, Nov. 15.—The village of Ishiki, site of the imperial detached palace facing westward across Kanakura Bay is somewhat more than usually alive.
Here large staffs of eminent physicians, assistants and nurses are watching their patient, Emperor Yoshihito, night and day.

Princesses and statesmen are coming and going from Dzuishi, a railway station three miles distant, paying homage to the invalid Emperor on behalf of the nation.
Their majesties' entourage temporarily resides in a modest villa. One of the younger imperial sons is within a few hundred yards of the main palace.

The imperial household hopes to be able to move the patient next week.

The main palace, which was badly damaged in the earthquake of September, 1923, has just recently been restored and enlarged. It is situated in the center of a hill, extending to the beach, hidden and sheltered by great pines which are encircled and patrolled by imperial guardmen, police and soldiers.

Representatives of all the metropolitan newspapers fill available space in hotels and houses. Every telephone is commandeered against emergency. All unnecessary noises are prohibited.

CORK, Nov. 15.—Sgt. Fitzsimmons, in charge of the civic guards barracks at St. Luke's, a populous residential district of Cork, was shot dead last night by a party of armed men. Three other police barracks in the city were similarly raided, and there are rumors that others in Cork County were visited by raiding parties and bundles of documents removed.

The city is being patrolled by soldiers and police are questioning pedestrians and the occupants of motor cars.

MEXICO CITY, Nov. 15.—Francisco Ariza, Roman Catholic Bishop of Campeche, is the seventh Mexican prelate to be placed under arrest. He is charged with uttering seditious propaganda. The Archbishops of Jalisco and San

EXTRA SESSION IDEA APPEALING TO DEMOCRATS

It Would Give Them a Opportunity for Revenge for Session of 1919 —
Insurgents Welcome Plan

PLENTY OF CHANCES TO FORCE SESSION

Taxation, Alien Property, Banking, Debts—All Furnish Opportunities for Filibusters This Winter.

Post-Dispatch Bureau.
29-33 Wyatt Bldg.

WASHINGTON, Nov. 15.—An extra session beginning March 4, 1927, may be forced upon President Coolidge. Events are conspiring to bring it about, and the idea appeals politically, not to say vindic-tively, to numerous Democrats as well as to Republican insurgents.

That is why Republican strategy is bent this early on angling for the support to the once communicated Frazier of North Dakota. That is why Republican leaders are proposing to win over the Farmer-Laborite Shipstead of Minnesota by promising to give him the regular Republican nomination in his State two years hence in view of the effacement of his own offshoot party.

Presidential politics, the notion that a Coolidge "third term" could be better headed off with Congress in session, the realization that Congress offers a convenient sounding board for financially straitened presidential groups and the threatened impasse in legislation in the short session commencing Dec. 6, all combine to favor an extra session.

Chance for Retaliation.

In addition, the thought is not absent among some veteran Democrats that it would be an agreeable retaliation to force upon the Republicans an extra session, manned by a hostile crew, just as the Republicans in 1919 by murdering an important series of vital supply bills drove Woodrow Wilson to the necessity of calling into being ahead of time a Republican-controlled Congress. Numerous Republicans who conspired to bring that embarrassment to Mr. Wilson now see the tables turned against them. Now the Democrats, with insurgent aid, can force into being the new and hostile Senate without even assuming nominal responsibility for the control.

The Senate, convening in its lame duck session Dec. 6, will be made up of 42 Democrats, eight Republican insurgents, the lone Shipstead and as offset to these 51, but 45 regular Republicans.

Already such independents as Borah, Norris and Johnson have expressed themselves in favor of an extra session.

The mechanics of forcing an extra session are simple. A short, sustained filibuster will kill necessary appropriation bills.

Many Excuses for Filibuster.

The excuses for filibustering are almost endless. Taxes, alien property, the Turkish treaty, prohibition, trust investigations, the Vire and Smith slush fund cases, Muscle Shoals, the French debt, farm relief, the branch banking bill, radio legislation, the judges' pay increase, the $5,000,000 river and harbors bill with its Cape Cod cannel purchase as a rider, coal legislation, railroad consolidation, Government reorganization, the Pullman surtax, the shipping board, the venerable French spoliation claims, the migratory bird bill, the truth-in-fabric bill, the list of pending matters is exhaustive.

Any one could be made the occasion for a verbal inundation. The French debt and the tax issue loom up notably. Presumably a few Democrats will be surely against an extra session. They will be offset, also presumably, by the insurgents. Hence if the Republicans can win Frazier or Shipstead to a tacit promise of support on this matter alone the day may be saved by a hair's breadth. That is how the Republican helmsmen are figuring.

The shaping of events on this extra session matter promises to be the key to the maneuvering in the impending session, and to it should be added the consideration that a surprisingly large number of the Republican "faithful" have secret longings to mar and not make a "third term."

2 to 1 Against Vire and Smith.

William E. Vire of Pennsylvania and Frank L. Smith of Illinois, whose primary campaigns were marked by huge expenditures, will be ousted from the Senate in the Seventeenth Congress by an overwhelming vote, according to a report of a partial party caucus.

The poll indicated that at least 17 Republican Senators would vote with virtually the entire Democratic membership against allow-

FOSSILS 7,000,000 YEARS OLD FOUND

Museum Party Discovers Bones of Animal That Resembled Llama and Giraffe.

By the Associated Press.

CHICAGO, Nov. 15.—Fossils of giant animals that roamed the Southern Hemisphere during the Pliocene age of some 7,000,000 years ago have been obtained by the second Marshall Field Paleontological expedition to Argentina. It is revealed in a report from Elmer S. Riggs, associate curator of paleontology at the Field Museum and leader of the party, to D. C.
Davis, director of the institution.

The expedition worked in the rocky and barren area of Catamarco, in Northern Argentina, and obtained approximately 3000 pounds of fossils of prehistoric creatures.

They include bones of the promacrauchenia, a great camel-like beast, one of the ancestors of the llama, now used as a beast of burden in the Andes. The shape of the body and length of the neck of the prehistoric beast resembled the llama; the fore limbs were longer than the hind legs, suggesting the giraffe; the structure of the head resembled that of a horse;
the rather long proboscis resembled that of the primitive elephant; the teeth were on the order of those of the rhinoceros, and the feet were much like those of the primitive three-toed horse. The beast fed on vegetable matter.

Several bones of giant sloths are in the collection. The giant sloths reached a length of 12 feet or more.
They had short forefeet and heavy hind quarters. They fed on vegetable matter, including the leaves and tender branches of trees.

Also included in the collection are fossils of glyptodonts, or giant armadillos, which reached a length of five feet or more, and fossils of large toxodonts, similar to the hippopotamus of today.

PLEA TO CONSCRIPT WEALTH APPLAUDED AS BLOW TO WAR

London Paper, However, Not So Enthusiastic Over Coolidge's World Court Stand.

By the Associated Press.

LONDON, Nov. 15.—The Westminster Gazette, in an editorial, applauds President Coolidge's pronouncement in favor of the conscription of wealth, as well as manpower, and says that if all Governments would follow the President's example a powerful blow would be struck in behalf of peace.

Wishing it could feel as happy about the remainder of the President's Kansas City speech, the Westminster Gazette points out that if all the nations adhering to the World Court imposed the same conditions as the United States, the court would be reduced to nullity.
It thinks it useless to complain of the American attitude, but adds that "We believe that America will one ter than her word. In the mean-

TURKEY TO CONSOLIDATE TIES WITH SOVIET, RUSHDY SAYS

Foreign Minister of Kemal Regime
Quits Ankara After Conference With Tchitcherin.

By the Associated Press.

ODESSA, Ukraine, Nov. 15.— Tevfik Ruskid Bey, Turkish Foreign Minister, who was in conference here for several days with Georges Tchitcherin, soviet foreign minister, is homeward bound on the Turkish battleship Hamid-ieh. Tchitcherin accompanied the visitor to the harbor front, where he bade him a cordial farewell.

In an interview before his departure, Ruskid said: "It is not enough to call the relations between our two countries friendly. They are fraternal. The meeting between M.
Tchitcherin and myself will culminate in a new consolidation of these relations."

"There is no question of change

Ruskid said. "We are ready to

ITALY EXEMPTS FOREIGNERS DRASTIC PENALTIES FOR LAW INFRAC- TIONS APPLY ONLY TO SUBJECTS.

By the Associated Press.

ROME, Nov. 15.—The law for the defense of the State, meting out penalties for attempts on the life of Premier Mussolini and heavily penalizing any opposition to the regime does not apply to foreigners visiting or resident in Italy.
This was officially announced by the Government.

This removes the fears recently expressed that Violet Ashburne, Gibson, sister of Lord Ashbourne of Great Britain, who tried to kill Mussolini by shooting at him April 7 last, might be executed under the new law.

The announcement also states that tourists are free to cross the frontier at will, the closing of the frontier applying only to Italians.
Similarly, article 5, inflicting jail terms on journalists sending false or exaggerated news from Italy applies only to subjects of the kingdom.

WOULD ABOLISH ALL AVIATION

British Air Chief Marshal Quoted
by London U. Professor.

By the Associated Press.

LONDON, Nov. 15.—A surprising view of aviation is attributed to Sir Hugh Trenchard, Air Chief Marshal,
by Prof. Philip Baker of London University. Baker, addressing a peace conference at York Saturday, said it was not generally known that Sir Hugh Trenchard had declared that if he had his own way he would abolish aviation, both military and civil, altogether, because he believed that the evil wrought by it was incomparably greater than any good it could bring.

63-Hour Trains, Chicago to Pacific

By the Associated Press.

CHICAGO, Nov. 15.—California moved five hours' travel time near the Midwest and East last night when 63-hour train service was established between Chicago and the Pacific Coast and the first extra-fare trains run west of Chicago since Federal control during the war.

The "Overland Limited,"
Union Pacific and Southern Pa-

Northwestern & Union Pacific, the Rock Island and the Santa Fe railroads to Los Angeles all inaugurated the 63-hour schedule.

SHELL EXPLODES, 12 KILLED

Peasants' Spade Sets Off Blast; Two

TRENT, Italy, Nov. 15.—Twelve peasants, from 18 to 20 years old, including three women, were killed, and two seriously wounded by the explosion of a shell left over from the World War.

One of the peasants accidentally struck the shell with a spade.

FORD INCREASES WAGES TO OFFSET WORK TIME CUT

ployees, About One-Third

Advances So Far.

COMPANY PLEASANT WITH 5-DAY WEEK

Good Business, Not Philanthropy—Officers Deny Alleged Inroads Made by Competition.

By the Associated Press.

DETROIT, Nov. 15.—Increases in pay to offset the reductions brought about by the five-day work week have been granted to 92,466 employees of the Ford Motor Co., and are gradually being put into effect throughout the entire organization, officers of the company announced.

The number to whom the increases so far have been granted represent about one-third of the employees of the motor company branch of the Ford organization.
By springs, officers indicated, they expect that every employee in the organization will have been brought under the new work plan.

Although not formally announced until a few weeks ago, the Ford five-day week plan has been in process of experimentation for more than a year and officials indicated they were satisfied of its success.

It is the contention of the Ford organization that with two days' leisure each week, workers turn out more and better work, and in addition they point out that this leisure time helps the automobile business.

Good Business, Not Philanthropy, Officers Say.

"This is not philanthropy," Charles E. Sorenson, superintendent of the main Ford factory here said. "It is simply good business.
More leisure gives people more time to spend on automobiles and the more leisure there is to spend in riding, the more cars will be needed in which to ride."

Taking cognizance of criticism by labor leaders and competitors that workers at the Ford plant are subject to tremendous pressure Sorenson said:

"The process of turning out six days work in five days in our plants will not be done by slave driving.
It will be done by eliminating the drones. Slack is being taken up.
Some of the work is being redistri-buted. There will be some changes in machinery."

Sorenson denied that the Ford Company had been hard hit by competition, especially by the General Motors Corporation and for that reason had not been publishing production figures. He also denied that there had been large lay-offs in men.

"We have 11,000 more persons in our employ now than at the peak of employment of previous years. Also we have been producing 6500 cars a day this year on a five-day basis."

Looks for "Spiritual Benefits."

Henry Ford is quoted in an article in the last issue of his publication, the Dearborn Independent, as saying the spiritual benefits will probably outweigh other profits derived by the workers.
"The church will be one of its chief beneficiaries," he said. Leisure to be effective must be properly directed. The church will receive rewards from this next leisure commensurate with the force it exerts in directing the intelligent use of it.

"Men have been giving an undue influence to play. They have stressed the physical to the neglect of the spiritual. In the acquirement round of work and recreation which they have devised they have left no place for the church. The physical aspect of Sunday has been gaining predominance over the spiritual."

With only one day of leisure, Ford was quoted as saying—men are prone to rest and neglect the spiritual aspect of the Sabbath.

"The sixth day of the week should be spent in leisure leaving the seventh for moral and religious observance."

SOUTH WALES MINERS AGREE TO COAL STRIKE SETTLEMENT

THE POST-DISPATCH PLAT-FORM.

I know that my readers will make no difference in its cardinal principles, that it will always fight for progress or reform, never tolerate injustice or corruption, always fight demagogues of all parties, never belong to any party, always oppose privileged classes and public plunderers, never lack sympathy with the poor, always remain devoted to the public welfare, never be satisfied with merely printing news; always be drastically independent; never be afraid to attack wrong, whether by predatory plutocracy or predatory poverty.

LETTERS FROM THE PEOPLE

Double Jeopardy.
To the Editor of the Post-Dispatch.

It is almost a pleasure to find the United States Supreme Court in unanimous agreement, even when at the cost of liberal and constitutional government. The learned gentlemen of this court have at last found one question on which they can all agree; and that, to twice punish a person for the "same offense" is not double jeopardy.

It is against the laws of Missouri to rob. There are men now in the Federal penitentiary for the robbery of mail trucks in this State. When these men are released from the penitentiary, would this court agree that they can be convicted under our State laws for the same offense? Not to so agree, this court would stand convicted of self-sufficiency. To so agree, it would stand convicted of inconceivable barbarity. Yet, this is the position that its recent decision regarding double jeopardy has placed it in.

When the Supreme Court ruled that double jeopardy for the same offense is not double jeopardy, it punishment is inflicted by more than one court, it violated the written words of the Constitution to sustain its interpretation of these words. The "same offense" is the one offense committed, and no half-splintering reasoning can hide the fact from the most lowly citizen in the land. More, double punishment for one offense is offensive and repugnant to all civilized people. This being true, it is not only reasonable to assume, but it is mandatory to declare, that the framers of the Constitution abhorred the principle of twice punishing a person for the same, one, offense.

Truly, the eighteenth amendment is 10,000 times more damnable than all the abuses that its madness hoped to correct. It should read: "The Constitution is hereby abrogated; all liberty is denied; justice is suspended; corruption of Government is advocated; moral cowardice and hypocrisy shall be the rule and practice of the people of the nation."

J. S. A.
A Tribute to the Market.

To the Editor of the Post-Dispatch.

There seems to be some controversy relative to the new Union Market and its worth to the people as a market place. In reply to those who have been finding fault, I wish to say that I have been a buyer at the market almost every day of the week since it was opened and have been a close observer of conditions and values there during that time. When a buyer considers value, the quality must necessarily be taken into account, otherwise the calculation is not on a correct basis. I have traded some at West End stores and butcher shops only when compelled to by circumstances, and have invariably found that there is no comparison whatever between them and Union Market when price and quality are considered. I have also discovered a great difference in the freshness of everything one purchases in favor of the market, and at least a per cent in cost. The market is ideal from a sanitary standpoint and is beyond compare.

J. D.
Poor Street Car Service.

To the Editor of the Post-Dispatch.

The bridge car line (when it happens to come along and does not pass you up). The other morning I waited (with others) just one-half hour for a car to get down to work. Four cars passed us up, and then the crowd had to walk down to a transfer corner so as to feel assured of getting down to work that day. If the street cars are run to serve the public, why don't they serve the public, or take off the line entirely and let the public look for other means of transportation to get downtown? On a rainy or cold morning there is often a long wait, and then 10 to one the car that does come along passes you up.

Why not run a "school special" from Kingshighway down to Prairie, to take care of the school passengers instead of passing up all the working people that have to get to work, and then unload the cars at the school and have them practically empty from that point downtown? It is a very provoking thing to have to start to work 15 or 20 minutes earlier than you should to get down on time, or on bad mornings to have to wait and wait when a "school special" could take care of the school passengers and let the other cars follow "on time" and get the people down to work.

BENSON.
The Crying Need.

To the Editor of the Post-Dispatch.

The crying need now is a cure for tax madness; for the tax mania which has taken possession of State legislators to the exclusion of everything else. Must we continue to send men to the legislature for no other purpose than finding ways and means of depriving us of our money? Knowing the situation, persisting in this course is silly; and this silliness has perhaps a great deal to do with perpetuating this legal robbery. These legislators seem to look upon the voters as deserving no better than they get. Perhaps the best way out is to deny office to all aspirants infected with this mania; to see first whether or not they are free from this blight before they are sent to represent us.

ERNEST DEBERTHAUSER.

AN OCCASION FOR HOPE.

In the outcome of recent elections held in the various states there is justification for the hope that we may reverse the pernicious theory and practice of governmental omnipotence which has plagued us now for a quarter of a century. In the prohibition issue and in the utterances of successful candidates against the regimentation of the citizen by Federal bureaucrats, there is comprehended the larger issue of the restoration of civil liberty and self-government under our original limited dual form of government.

In the period from 1898 to the present the United States has engaged in two wars which have made the opportunities for tremendous accessions of power to the Federal Government, profoundly affecting the citizen in his life, in his liberty and in his property. Before 1898 our people had enjoyed almost unimpeded for a century full individual liberty and immunity against governmental power, jealously guarded by the Supreme Court. The great and stirring decisions of that tribunal from the days of Marshall to the Wong Kim Ark case in 1898, had almost wholly to do with shielding the liberty of the individual against legislative and executive assaults.

Since 1898, as an incident to the "war power," by usurpation and by constitutional process initiated by the Government, there has taken place a constant expansion of Federal power, ever further restricting the citizen in his liberty and in his property. In contempt of his constitutional immunities. And the Supreme Court, instead of holding fast to its fine historic service as the defender of the citizen against governmental power, has cast its lot with Government, sanctioning practically every assault made upon the citizen's rights. This combination of the court with the legislative and executive branches presents the most formidable obstacle to recovery of individual liberty, since every usurpation of power receives the stamp of constitutionality.

There are in the Senate of the United States men who know how far the Federal Government has gone in breaking down the old happy system of freedom, local responsibility and limited government; and who know, too, that unless the present course is halted, unless there is a complete about-face, we shall wind up in anarchy or despotism. We have in mind particularly Senator Reed, Senator-elect Hawes, Senator Bruce of Maryland, Senator-elect Wagner of New York, as a nucleus, eminently fitted in spirit, knowledge and solicitude to undertake this pressing work of reformation, to the end that the general Government at Washington, limited to its proper functions, may again merit the respect, in place of the now universal contempt in which it is held by the bedeviled citizen.

A POLITICAL PARSON'S REWARD.

In gratitude for the services of the Rev. Thomas L. Settle, turfmen have built him a $300,000 church at Lexington, Ky. Three years ago a bill was pending before the Legislature which would have repealed Kentucky's pari-mutuel betting law and killed horse racing in Kentucky. The Rev. Mr. Settle appeared before the Legislature to make an argument against it, and it was believed he had much to do with the defeat of the bill.

Turn about, they say, is fair play. The political parsons in Kentucky have gone into politics up to their necks, so the racing interests have taken up religion. Most of the parsons are against racing and have barred the jockey club nearly to death. When one political parson came out for racing the racing crowd could not restrain its enthusiasm. The handsome church was the result.

How this alliance between racing and religion will work out we have no idea. But the disciples of sport everywhere will be pulling for Brother Settle and his church to make a galloping success.

JOHNS HOPKINS.

Michael Pupin once said that no rich man in the United States should die without leaving something to Johns Hopkins. That was his striking way of expressing the value of a school whose purpose is to advance the frontiers of human knowledge.

Early this year Johns Hopkins announced it would make no more bachelors, but it would only confer the degrees of master and doctor of philosophy. Thus, it decided to return to its original purpose (from which it was diverted by an obligation to meet a local need for undergraduate training) of training only graduate students and promoting pure research.

That policy is now being pursued and Johns Hopkins, free of the turbulence, distractions and routine of undergraduate affairs, has dug in. The work of its first president, Daniel Coit Gilman, and the brilliant group of scholars, Sylvester, Glidderleeve, Remsen, Rowland and the others, that he gathered round him goes forward with new impetus.

At Johns Hopkins there is no great concrete stadium; its gladiators fight in laboratories filled with deadly germs and the curious paraphernalia of science, or battle in classrooms with ideas. These laboratories and classrooms are the stadia which have produced truth in the past and which bear promise for the future.

It is because Johns Hopkins is interested in the pursuit of truth that Michael Pupin singled it out. It is only truth that can unbind this Prometheus of earth, and the search and pursuit of truth, pure and unalloyed, in the United States is an almost unheard-of thing. Johns Hopkins is daring to do the robes of a scholarly anchorite in these glittering times.

EUROPE'S TARIFF MADNESS.

The tariff-madness of Europe is shown by a map published by the Foreign Policy Association. Russia and Spain have towering walls. Austria, Rumania, Bulgaria, Yugoslavia, Czechoslovakia, Greece and Poland are high protectionist countries. France and Germany, Switzerland, Italy and the Scandinavian countries are a bit more moderate. Low tariff countries are Great Britain, the Netherlands, Denmark and Belgium.

Tariff-madness is a disease growing out of the war which changed the map of Europe and during which commercial treaties of long standing were abrogated. Trade channels used for centuries were choked by new political boundaries and by a spirit of intense nationalism whose aim was for economic self-sufficiency.

Such artificial interference with the natural laws of commerce explains in large part Europe's present troubles. Europe is learning some costly lessons about the interdependence of nations.

HAVE WE TIRED OF LIBERTY?

The reconstitution of Poland as an independent state by the Treaty of Versailles was everywhere welcomed as a too long delayed act of international justice. But she had hardly been launched upon her new career before fears for her future were aroused, first from inescapable friction with Germany due to a geographical delimitation which incorporated a large German population, and second, by reason of yielding to French military plans calling for a Polish army of 250,000 men, maintained largely in supposed French interest.

It is not surprising that eight years after her revival Poland should now be in the grasp of despotism, with the liberties of her people even more completely crushed out than when they were scattered under Russia, Prussia and Austria. Pilsudski, the military dictator, has just issued decrees that suppress the freedom of press and which close the courts and substitute summary trials. Opposition is to be put down apparently with the savagery characterizing Mussolini's methods in Italy.

The times are calling for another Kosciuszko in Poland, but it is doubtful that he lives, or if he does live, there is nowhere today that fervent love of liberty and readiness of sacrifice on the part of people of a century ago, without which all attempted heroic service loses its nobility.

Hope for a season, bade the world farewell. And freedom shrieked as Kosciuszko fell.

But the overthrow of Pilsudski and the restoration of freedom in Poland would arouse only the mildest interest in the world today, as the suppression of liberty in Russia, Italy and Spain evokes no sympathy, and but little indignation.

Could Mussolini have been right when he said we have tired of liberty?

MEXICAN MARATHON RUNNERS.

One of Prescott's fascinating Mexican tales was that of the Indian runners who approximated our own Postal Department and kept the central Government in touch with every part of the empire. We are told that these Indians brought to the capital every day the fruits of the tropics and the sea foods of the coasts. It was as great a surprise to Cortes and his men to find how the table of Montezuma was served by this primitive express as it was to find the city itself lighted by night.

The other day Tomas Zaffro and Leoncio San Miguel, Tarahumara Indians, ran 62 1/2 miles, from Pachuca to Mexico City, in 9 hours and 37 minutes. They were competing in the Olympic games of Latin America, which has revived some of the athletic feats of the Indians. Probably Tomas and Leoncio, who were not even panting when they finished, though they made a world record for the distance, are descendants of those Tarahumara who ran in the old Indian express which brought Montezuma fresh oysters from Vera Cruz and carried to the faraway mountains the command of Guatemac, head of the army.

At any rate, they are today the same people they were, as Carl Lincolns found when he went down through Western Mexico 20 years ago. Untouched by the Conquest, they are also untouched by anything enervating in civilization. They got for their run the other day two crimson silk handkerchiefs, 60 yards of cotton cloth and two modern plows; but a greater reward probably awaits them. They may be sent to the Olympic Games of the paleface.

A piano mover has become an opera star, but the reverse process would often prove more satisfying.

COSSACKS IN A CORNFIELD.

Americans have long thought of Cossacks as cruel cavalrymen riding for the Czar; a sort of symbol of the despotism that ruled Russia before the passing of the Romanoff dynasty. Unless the books and newspapers were wrong, the Cossacks were something like that, retaining the fierceness of the Tartar tribesmen from which they sprang, and living as the long arm of autocracy, and a scourge to Slavic peasants.

Now there are dismounted Cossacks shocking kaffir corn on Miller Brothers' ranch in Oklahoma. Their foreman is a former General, M. Savitsky. They take to their bucolic pursuit without protest. They are, in fact, very good farm hands, in the opinion of the ranchman who employed them.

The days of the Czar are done. The revolt wrought havoc with many who sat in the seats of the mighty. Doubtless there are other Generals of the old days who would welcome a job as foreman of a field gang. There is not an exciting occupation. A corn knife is neither dashing nor adventurous, yet it may not be so bad for these transplanted warriors of other days.

Some of these warriors may go on being farmhands, a pursuit that pays better than service in Russian cavalry, but they need not keep on at any one pursuit. Here they are neither feared nor hated, unless it be by a few of their former countrymen who have reason for such bitterness. They are exiled by the fortunes of war, but that may prove good fortune. Other aliens, from such an humble start, have risen to great achievement, and the opportunities haven't been exhausted.

MUSSOLINI AND JUST A MINUTE ARE COMMENDED FOR THEIR LIBER-TY-LOVING STAND ON BABIES' NAMES.

(Cleveland Plain Dealer.)

George Washingtons, Winfield Scotts, Abraham Lincolns, Theodore Roosevelts and others who suffer from the paucity or sublimity of their parents' ideas about naming children will give their heartfelt approval to a recent decree of the Italian Cabinet which forbids tagging babies with the names of famous or illustrious persons. Bearers of highfalutin or "sissified" names will wish they could be born again in Italy when they read the bestowal of "ridiculous, shameful or subversive names" is also banned. "Subversive" covers a lot of ground. Many a "Benjamin Franklin" has silently resented the steam roller effect of his name on his personality, and many an Algernon Percival has sighed for the sturdy mediocrity of William Henry.

SERVICE.

Slang, if we may accept the word of a professor of English, is the sign of a virile language. It enriches, rather than cheapens, English. What will big business do about it? We have been assured that the motto of big business is, "He profits most who serves best." And the Rotary Clubs? Their motto is "Service." While professors of English may not be any great shakes at either business or Rotary, the high-brow boys sure know their groceries when it comes to having the low down on peppy language. And if slang gives English a shot in the arm, it puts the skids under "Service." "It serves him right" is a slang expression meaning some fly bimbo got what was coming to him. "Serves you right" may denote excellent service, but what it connotes is that someone was served a large plate of tripe. Neither big business nor Rotary has put forward claims for "Service." Virile slang puts the motto in a bad light. We suggest that the slogans be pepped up to "He profits most who has the biggest turnover, and the bimbo putting out good goods at rock-bottom prices makes turnover sit up and beg." And "Hold the other bozo; you may be stymied your self some day."

The "Ohio gang" has been put into fiction. Sort of book-cabinet, we presume. THE WORLD'S WORST POEM.

"What is needed," said a friend, carefully depositing his feet on our desk, and borrowing a match, "is a magazine telling how not to fail." "Elucidate your proposition," we requested. "Well," he went on, "the average success magazine tells how to succeed. There are any number of ways of succeeding, but the methods of failing should be few and uniform. If a man can avoid these pit falls, he should succeed. Is my proposition clear, or is your puny brain incapable of following a train of thought?"

"Your idea," we hastened to assure him, "is pellucidly plain, but is of no value to us. We are not editing a success magazine; we devote all our time to thoughtful comment on art, life and literature; we are a cultural influence." But we made note of the idea, and broached the matter to another friend. He was enthusiastic. "So you are a cultural influence?" he asked. We admitted as much, and he said, "Then why not show your customers how not to be uncultured?" "You mean," we began, "I mean," he said, "show people what is not art. Art is varied, but the things that are not art should be few and uniform. For example, print the world's worst poem." "We do, frequently," was our ready response. "I don't mean one you wrote," he answered. "Take the worst poem of some dead author, and print that. If it is too long, print parts of it. In that way, while you are not a cultural influence positively, you can become a cultural influence negatively. There are collections without number of the world's best poems; why not compile the world's worst poems, one at a time?" The idea is sound; why not print the world's worst poem?

LUCY GRAY.

Or Solitude.

(Extracts.)

Oh I had heard of Lucy Gray:
And, when I crossed the wild,
I chanced to see, at break of day,
The solitary child.
You yet may spy the fawn at play,
The hare upon the green;
But the sweet face of Lucy Gray
Will never more be seen.

If you have tears, prepare to shed them now!

They followed from the snowy bank
Those footmarks, one by one,
Into the middle of the plank;
And further there were none!

—Yet some maintain that to this day
She is a living child;
That may be sweet Lucy Gray

And never looks behind;
And sings a solitary song,
That whistles in the wind.

The MIRROR
PUBLIC OPINION

This column is designed to represent without bias the latest comment by leading publicists, newspapers and publicists on the questions of the day.

KAROLYI-KELLOGG SUIT ESTIMATED.

From the Brooklyn Eagle.

TO her lawyers—Curtis, Foshier & Knapp—the Countess Karolyi, who is to be called Mrs. Katherine Karolyi, wires from Montreal: "Be so kind as to drop my suit which you entered against the Department of State asking for a visa to enter the United States was denied. It is a matter of regret that Karolyi Kellogg saw fit not to tender me a courtesy, which was so freely given to Canadian Government." Mr. Curtis has acted promptly. There will be no legal proceedings. "We shall never where we are not wanted" is the Karolyi formula. It expresses the dignity of the oldest families of Magyar nobility, is true that in the minds of good constitutional lawyers there is a serious question as to whether such an act by the Secretary of State is reviewable by the courts. Yet litigation might determine that question to no purpose whatever so far as Karolyis are concerned. The property what Mr. Kellogg did and of his opinion of his reasons for doing it, we will not in the high court of public sentiment the verdict has not been a doubtful one.

With most of their property grabbed by the reactionary Horthy regime in Hungary which exiled them, the Karolyis who have liked to settle in the United States still to be reckoned with. The Countess Karolyi is a large landowner in Manitoba or Saskatchewan. She is an inviting field. Hundreds of non-Hungarian workers now in France are being brought to Canada. To them the Karolyi name is an inspiration. Our loss is Canada's gain, but Canada gets nothing for a free country she has not gained by true to her traditions. Fidelity to traditions is rightly thought of as a vital factor in all progressive nations.

Why Laugh at Salem?

From the Daily Oklahoman.

IN historic Salem, where a reputation for intolerance was acquired in whole-living days that will last forever, 425 recently cast their votes for a candidate who had been dead two years. The town of Salem, Mass., is a famous city has entirely emerged from its benighted condition that gripped it in the days of Cotton Mather.

But is Salem entirely alone in its belief for the dead? How much evidence is there between voting for an individual who has been dead for two years and voting for a principle that has been dead half a century? Is not the citizen's vote exactly as his father did not vote for some departed candidate? Are not the same states proving their allegiance to dead and gone when they permit the undecies of a long gone era to determine the fashion of their voting? After all, the laugh at Salem? Rippey, Mrs. Leland and Mrs. W. W. Hennessey will assist. George Rosenthal will assist about 100 and Miss Margaret.

MISS CRUNDEN TO WED
FESTUS J. WADE JR.

Ceremony Jan. 20—Engagement Announced at Harry French Knight Home.

AT an attractive tea given yesterday by Mr. and Mrs. Harry French Knight at the home of Mr. Knight's father, Mr. Harry French Knight, on the Warren and Litzinger roads, a show place of St. Louis Country Club, announcement was made of the engagement of Miss Catherine Louise Crunden, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Frank Crunden, and Festus J. Wade Jr. The engagement is of unusual interest because of the social prominence of the two families. Miss Crunden has chosen Jan. 20 as the date of her wedding, which will be one of the most important of the mid-winter social events. The ceremony will take place at the Crunden home, 4425 Westminster place, and a reception will follow at the St. Louis Country Club.

The Knight home was beautifully decorated with yellow roses and anthurums for the party. The ceremony was held at 4 o'clock. Miss Crunden is a graduate of the Mary Institute and Forest School in Middleburg, Va. She made her debut several seasons ago at a series of dinners at the Florissant Valley Country Club. She is a member of the Imperial and is the president of the Junior League. Miss Crunden is fond of horseback riding and is one of the few St. Louis users of the side saddle. She also plays an excellent game of golf.

Mr. Wade is one of the vice presidents of the Mercantile Trust Co., of which his father is president. He attended St. Louis University, and was graduated from Yale in 1922. He served overseas with the Twelfth Field Artillery during the war, and was cited for bravery under fire. He is a member of the St. Louis Country, Racquet and University Clubs.

By unusual coincidence, Miss Crunden and her brother, Arthur, are to be married the same month. Mr. Crunden's wedding to Miss Christine Wallace Crane of New York will take place Jan. 3.

Mr. and Mrs. Sidney Allen arrived in St. Louis from their home in Paris last night to be the guests for the winter with Mrs. Allen's mother, Mrs. Henry S. Turner, Pershing avenue. They landed at New York Saturday and came directly to St. Louis. Mrs. Turner gave a dinner party for them last night and much entertaining will be given for them during their stay. Mrs. Allen was Mrs. Marion Warner Lambert before her marriage.

Cards have been sent by Mrs. H. Kirkpatrick of 6301 Washington boulevard, and Mrs. T. F. Kirkpatrick, for a luncheon bridge at the Missouri Athletic Club, Nov. 18.

Mr. and Mrs. Kenneth L. Green of 47 Westmoreland place, will depart tomorrow for a visit in New York.

Formal announcement has been made of the engagement of Miss Katherine Shaw Chandler, daughter of Warren M. Chandler of 5147 Waterman street, and Claude Williamson Porter of St. Louis, formerly of Chicago. The news was courtesy, which was so freely given to Canadian Government." Mr. Curtis has acted promptly. There will be no legal proceedings. "We shall never where we are not wanted" is the Karolyi formula. It expresses the dignity of the oldest families of Magyar nobility, is true that in the minds of good constitutional lawyers there is a serious question as to whether such an act by the Secretary of State is reviewable by the courts. Yet litigation might determine that question to no purpose whatever so far as Karolyis are concerned. The property what Mr. Kellogg did and of his opinion of his reasons for doing it, we will not in the high court of public sentiment the verdict has not been a doubtful one.

With most of their property grabbed by the reactionary Horthy regime in Hungary which exiled them, the Karolyis who have liked to settle in the United States still to be reckoned with. The Countess Karolyi is a large landowner in Manitoba or Saskatchewan. She is an inviting field. Hundreds of non-Hungarian workers now in France are being brought to Canada. To them the Karolyi name is an inspiration. Our loss is Canada's gain, but Canada gets nothing for a free country she has not gained by true to her traditions. Fidelity to traditions is rightly thought of as a vital factor in all progressive nations.

Why Laugh at Salem?

From the Daily Oklahoman.

IN historic Salem, where a reputation for intolerance was acquired in whole-living days that will last forever, 425 recently cast their votes for a candidate who had been dead two years. The town of Salem, Mass., is a famous city has entirely emerged from its benighted condition that gripped it in the days of Cotton Mather.

But is Salem entirely alone in its belief for the dead? How much evidence is there between voting for an individual who has been dead for two years and voting for a principle that has been dead half a century? Is not the citizen's vote exactly as his father did not vote for some departed candidate? Are not the same states proving their allegiance to dead and gone when they permit the undecies of a long gone era to determine the fashion of their voting? After all, the laugh at Salem? Do not most of us vote just as foolishly as the Salemers along Massachusetts Bay?

MISS CRUNDEN TO WED
FESTUS J. WADE JR.

Ceremony Jan. 20—Engagement Announced at Harry French Knight Home.

At an attractive tea given yesterday by Mr. and Mrs. Harry French Knight at the home of Mr. Knight's father, Mr. Harry French Knight, on the Warsaw and Lehigh roads, a show place of St. Louis County, announcement was made of the engagement of Miss Catherine Louise Crunden, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Frank P. Crunden, and Festus J. Wade Jr. The engagement is of unusual interest because of the social prominence of the two families. Miss Crunden has chosen Jan. 20 as the date of her wedding, which will be one of the most important of the mid-winter social events. The ceremony will take place at the Crunden home, 4424 Westminster place, and a reception will follow at the Lehigh Country Club.

The Knight home was beautifully decorated with yellow roses and autumn leaves for the party yesterday. Miss Florence Wade, sister of the prospective bridegroom, and Mrs. Walter Crunden, sister-in-law of the bride, were the hosts.

Miss Crunden is a graduate of Mary Institute and Foxcroft School in Middleburg, Va. She made her debut several seasons ago at a series of dinners at the Florissant Valley Country Club. She is a member of the Imperial and is the president of the Junior League. Miss Crunden is fond of horseback riding and is one of the few St. Louis users of the side saddle. She also plays an excellent game of golf. Mr. Wade is one of the vice presidents of the Mercantile Trust Co., of which his father is president. Mr. and Mrs. Sidney Allen arrived in St. Louis from their home in Paris last night to be the guests for the winter with Mrs. Allen's mother, Mrs. Henry S. Turner, of the city. They arrived Saturday and will remain for their last night and much entertaining will be given for them during their stay. Mrs. Allen was Mrs. Marion Turner Lambert before her marriage.

Cards have been sent by Mrs. H. Kirkpatrick of 6801 Washington boulevard, and Mrs. T. F. Kirkpatrick, for a luncheon bridge at the Missouri Athletic Association, Nov. 16.

Mr. and Mrs. Kenneth L. Green of 47 Westmoreland place, will depart tomorrow for a visit in New York.

Formal announcement has been made of the engagement of Miss Margaret Shaw Chandler, daughter of Warren M. Chandler of 5247 Sherman avenue, and Claude Humphreys Porter of St. Louis, formerly of Chicago. The news was first given at a party given Saturday night by Mr. and Mrs. Garneau at their new home on the Kingsway road.

Miss Chandler was educated at Bryn Mawr, Pa. Because of the death of her mother, three years ago, Miss Chandler did not make a formal debut. She is popular socially and is a member of the Junior League. Mr. Porter served in the World War as captain of field artillery. He is a member of the University of Wisconsin and is a member of the high court of public sentiment and verdict has not been a doubtful one. Most of their property grabbed by the Hun during the war in Hungary.

Mr. and Mrs. Clarence J. Curby of 414 Washington Terrace will give a winter party, this evening complimentary to Miss Edith Peters, daughter of Mrs. Frederick R. Peters of 5225 Waterman avenue, popular debutante of the season. Following the theater the party will be entertained at a supper at the Hotel Chase. The guests will be made up of eight debutantes and their escorts.

Mr. Benjamin M. Wood will depart tomorrow for Chicago to visit his father during the absence of Mr. Wood in Mexico. He is with a party of hunters the guest of J. Harry Scullin of St. Louis.

Among the St. Louisans who will be in Chicago Nov. 27 to see the Navy football game are Mr. and Mrs. Emmet M. Meyers of 4255 Pine boulevard and Col. and Mrs. O. W. Bell of Lindell boulevard. Col. and Mrs. Bell will join a group of army officers and their families and will be their guests.

A theater party will be given tonight by Harold Maxwell of the Embassy Apartments complimentary to his daughter, Miss Dorothy. The guests will be a group of the debutantes and their escorts.

A tea will be given tomorrow by Mrs. Edward Day Rae of 5323 Pine avenue, in honor of Mrs. Emma Newton, wife of Constance Newton, and Miss Carolyn Newton. There will be 200 guests. John D. Hickey, Mrs. Leland Hickey, Mrs. W. W. Hickey and George Rosenthal will assist about hats and Miss Margaret

MANY CREEDS JOIN HANDS

UNDER 'FLAG OF TOLERANCE'

Port Huron (Mich.) Klan Gave Banner, Jew the Most, Negro Raised It and Catholic Spoke.

By the Associated Press.

PORT HURON, Mich., Nov. 15.—A "flag of tolerance" waves today from a pole in the yard of the First Methodist Episcopal Church.

The flag was donated by the Port Huron Ku Klux Klan to the church the pastor of which, Dr. Russell H. Brady, has been an open foe of the Klan. The mast from which the flag flies was presented to the church by Jacob S. Goldman, a Jew. The flag was raised by Archibald Wayne, Negro war veteran, and the dedicatory address was made by Mgr. Patrick R. Dunigan, Catholic.

To 10,000 persons who gathered for the ceremony yesterday, Mgr. Dunigan said:

This observance, with its diversity of elements assembled so obviously for the common good, means nothing if not the convincing burial of the bitterness of bigotry in this community.

In spite of a warning Pastor Brady received last week that 400 men would be present "to see that the service was never carried off," there was no sign of disorder. The entire Police Department, augmented by a company of National Guardsmen under arms, was present.

George H. Sewell, Editor, Is Dead.

CARTHAGE, Mo., Nov. 15.—George H. Sewell, 67 years old, veteran newspaper man of Southwest Missouri, is dead of heart disease here.

Mr. Sewell was vice-president of the Free Publishing Co. of Carthage, and a brother of W. J. Sewell, president of the company. He was a member of the board of the Missouri Fruit Experiment station at Mountain Grove, former president of the Ozark district fair association, and for 15 years was head of the Jasper County Boys' Corn Show, which he founded. Before coming to Carthage, 27 years ago, Mr. Sewell had published the Virden, Ill. Reporter for 15 years.

Collects Funds for Dry Ireland.

Contributions for a local prohibition campaign in the north of Ireland were received by the Rev. Dr. E. J. McKee of Dublin, who preached yesterday in the First Presbyterian Church. An attempt is being made to vote Belfast and the surrounding region dry, under local option laws similar to those prevailing in American States before national prohibition.

WELL VARIED BILL
AT THE ORPHEUM

Hungarian Violinist and Jack Norworth in a One-Act Farce Share Honors.

FROM the sublime to the ridiculous is no mere figure of speech this week at the Orpheum with Ducl de Kerekjarto, Hungarian violin virtuoso, providing the one, and Jack Norworth and Dorothy Adelphi and Bert Hanlon and others supplying the rest. Norworth, amiable veteran of many stages, has a peculiarly titillating kind of bedroom farce of a different kind—virtually the same act which W. C. Fields and Edna Leedom gave with great effect in Ziegfeld's "Follies." The curtain rises on a man and his wife in bed. He wants to sleep, she wants to quarrel—and so far in the night.

De Kerekjarto is one of the few really fine masters of the violin who can hold a popular audience without recourse to cheapness. His program is judiciously chosen for melody, and ranges from the flashy sweetness of "Song of the Nightingale" to the throbbing ecstasy of the "Hungarian Rhapsody." For encore he plays an improvisation on the theme of "Carry Me Back to Old Virginia."

Hanlon, a most engaging clown, wanders in and out of the show as master of ceremonies. The program includes: George Dormonde and Partner, equilibrists on monocycles; Lionel (Mike) Ames, an amateur thespian from the University of Michigan—rather more Lionel than Mike, though, because he is a female impersonator; the Blue Slickers, a jazz band with a kazoo; and that if you drive back to the dancing of attractive Marie White; Eddie Allen and Doris Canfield in wild and noisy nonsense; and Lotie Atherton, closing the bill, whose bid for fame is a clog dance done while she stands on her head.

BUYS LOST HOLBEIN PAINTING

Detroit Institute of Art Purchases Hitherto Misplaced Work.

By the Associated Press.

NEW YORK, Nov. 15.—The Detroit Institute of Arts has purchased a hitherto lost painting by Hans Holbein, sixteenth century master. It is announced. Only two other public galleries in this country, the Metropolitan Museum of Art here and the Toledo Art Museum are known to contain examples of Holbein's work.

The picture is a portrait of Sir Henry Guildford, a knight to Henry VIII. The art dealers announced they had found the painting in Europe after studying references to it in literature about Holbein and engravings made from the original by Wenzel Hollar in 1647.

STATUE TO CHOPIN UNVEILED

Effort Made to Impress World Composer Was of Polish Birth.

By the Associated Press.

WARSAW, Nov. 15.—As part of the three-day ceremonies in honor of Frederic Francois Chopin, a statue of the famous composer has been unveiled here. Representatives of musical organizations in several countries were invited, to impress upon them that Chopin was a Polish composer, despite his French name.

On account of the great distance, America was not represented, but delegations came from all Europe, except Germany, and also from Japan. The delegations deposited wreaths, among them the soviet delegation, whose wreath was the first soviet floral offering at any Polish ceremony.

New Films

By NIE.

AT the moment of galloping to press we can't recall the reason why, as a boy, we never got much entertainment out of a steel mill, but some how or other our early education regarding fiery furnaces was confined to an occasional Sunday reading of the story of Shadrach, Meshach and Abednego and a more persistent set of visits to the coal shed to supply the demands of that daddy of the present day furnace, a Baltimore Heater. As we grew up we still failed to see the amusement possibilities in a lot of molten metal splashing around on a dirt floor and threatening every minute to engulf the puddlers, as we believe the gentlemen are called who pick this as their favorite indoor sport. Under the circumstances then we approach a review of the picture, "Men of Steel," at the Ambassador Theater, sadly in need of the technical knowledge with which the true and conscientious critic should be equipped and experts may possibly pick flaws in our statement that it is a pretty good movie of a steel mill with red hot metal—it is really colored red in the film—splashing and spluttering all over the place. It is, as a matter of fact, exactly what we have always imagined the inside of a steel mill to be like, but at the same time, we also find it to be as devoid of entertainment and amusement as we have pictured. Movie fans who just love steel mills may not agree with that statement either. Certainly Milton Sills proves that an honest heart can beat under the falsest of puddles, and that if you drive back to the anarchistically inclined workmen single-handed and save the boss' lovely daughter from a hot finish in a tank of liquid fire, you can be reasonably sure of becoming the owner of the place and marrying into the leading steel circles of Pittsburgh.

High Life on Long Island.

IT is something of a relief, then, to see "The Great Gatsby" at the Missouri. Here we can leave behind the soiled face mill workers and spend an hour with the best people in their bathing pools while they make love to other money and engage in the other simple pleasures of the idle rich. For Mr. Gatsby has made millions out of bootlegging, and Long Island's fast set accepts his hospitality without taking the trouble to find out that he had been nothing but a second louse in the late war. Gatsby is a self-made man, one of those fellows who would meet the wolf at the door and be wearing a new fur coat a few minutes later. All of this and most of the rest of Scott Fitzgerald's splendid story is brought out in the picture, but somewhere, in the translation into a mile of celluloid, the finer parts of the typed version have been lost. As a spoken drama, "The Great Gatsby" is said to have missed fire and as a movie it just fails short, somehow of being satisfying. But the people who have cried long and loud for fewer happy endings will have no cause to complain here. A funeral in a rainstorm. Incidentally, if you want to see "The Great Gatsby" you will have to hurry, for it comes off after tomorrow night, to make way for a 10-day showing of "We're in the Navy Now," which starts Wednesday at the Missouri.

Collegiate.

THE best picture of the week is "One Minute to Play," in which Mr. Red Grange is starring at the Grand Central Theater. It is, might be suspected, a college story about, or around, a football game. For some unknown and highly revolutionary reason, the producer didn't pick his college types from among the chorus-men extras around Hollywood, but went right to one of California's seats of learning and got the real thing. The result is a comedy which fairly bubbles with youth and high spirits and which is amusing and entertaining every foot of the way. And just in passing let it be said that professional football is in danger of losing its main asset, for Red Grange is a movie star on the first water and from now on is going to be kept pretty busy working in the films.

Another Good One.

UNNING the Grand Central's offering a close second is "There You Are" down at Loew's. The reason for the name is not explained but it is a fast moving farce with a lot of clever, wise cracking sub titles and some very funny situations. Conrad Nagel, who is determined to become a screen comedian, is the star and while he is not yet a Harold Lloyd he is bright and clever in this film. His long line of serious parts, before he decided to be a funny man, makes it hard for the fans to accept his buffonery and every moment expect him to turn serious and do something heroic. "There You Are" is good screen entertainment and Gus Edwards has a stage offering which is pleasing, but unhappily Mr. Edwards doesn't know when to stop. An acceptable way to shorten it would be to dispense with Mr. Edwards' tiresome song in which he showers praise upon Mr. Edwards.

Holt's Colt.

A ZANE GREY western in which there is a lot of riding across horizons by Sheriff's posse, cattle rustlers and Jack Holt will amuse audiences this week at the St. Louis. It is called "Forlorn River," and like Grey's deserts, purple sages, prairies and mountains the river has nothing to do with the plot. For that matter, neither has Holt. The plot wanders about enjoying the scenery while Jack makes love to Arletta Marschal. It seems that once upon a time there was a good cattle rustler who fell in love with a cattleman's daughter and saved her from his former outlaw buddies—and after many ponies have galloped over the mesquite this is just what happens. Up bobs Jack with a Colt in his hand, beats the villain to the draw and saves the gal. It is an unusually fine Colt with a carved ivory handle. The forlorn river is especially good, also. And so, by the way, is the vaudeville.

Still With Us.

THE Vitaphone and "Don Juan" are still plodding along at the Capitol where the higher admission prices, or something else, has succeeded in keeping the picture fans away in droves from the Sixth Street playhouses. Syd Chaplin in "The Better 'Ole" and a new list of Vitaphone artists are to be substituted presently.

TUNEFUL PROGRAM FOR SECOND "POP" CONCERT

Clara Rabinovitch, Pianist, Is Soloist With Symphony Orchestra in Sunday Afternoon Offering.

A light, tuneful program, directed at the senses rather than the minds of its hearers, yesterday afternoon gave patrons of the second popular concert of the Symphony Orchestra a session of ear-filling entertainment.

The soloist was Clara Rabinovitch, a pianist who gave the larghetto and allegro movements of Chopin's "Second Concerto in F Minor," in pleasing style, and offered a Valse of the Polish composer for an encore. The orchestra opened the program with Mendelssohn's Wedding March from the "Midsummer Night's Dream" and followed it with Thomas' inconsequential "Carnival of Venice" overture. The soulful "Adagio Pathetique" of Goddard swinging waltzes from "The Gypsy Baron" by Johann Strauss, the younger, and two numbers from Moszkowsky's "Laurin" ballet, completed the regular program, which was augmented by Moszkowsky's "Malaguna" and Vierno's "Petite Gavotte."

Her lawyers—Curtis, Foedick & Knapp—the Countess Karolyi, who was to be called Mrs. Katherine Karolyi from Montreal: "He so kind as to my suit which you entered against me, I am glad to see that it has been dismissed of State asking for cause why I do not enter the United States is dismissed. It is a matter of regret that Secretary Kellogg saw fit not to tender me this, which was so freely given by the United States Government." Mr. Curtis says promptly. "There will be no more proceedings. We shall never again be we are not wanted in the Karolyi suit. It expresses the dignity of one of the oldest families of Magyar nobility. We that in the minds of good constitutional lawyers there is a serious question whether such an act by the Secretary of State is reviewable by the courts. Years of litigation might determine that question, but no purpose whatever so far as the Karolyi is concerned. The propriety of his reasons for doing it, we maintain without exaggeration, has been tried in the high court of public sentiment and verdict has not been a doubtful one. Most of their property grabbed by the Hun during the war in Hungary.

Mr. and Mrs. Kenneth L. Green of 47 Westmoreland place, will depart tomorrow for a visit in New York.

Formal announcement has been made of the engagement of Miss Margaret Shaw Chandler, daughter of Warren M. Chandler of 5247 Sherman avenue, and Claude Humphreys Porter of St. Louis, formerly of Chicago. The news was first given at a party given Saturday night by Mr. and Mrs. Garneau at their new home on the Kingsway road.

Miss Chandler was educated at Bryn Mawr, Pa. Because of the death of her mother, three years ago, Miss Chandler did not make a formal debut. WHY LAUGH AT SALEM?

The Daily Oklahoman.

Historic Salem, where a reputation for endurance was acquired in witch-burnings that will last forever, 820 citizens cast their votes for a candidate who had been dead two years when the day dawned. All New England is at Salem and wondering if the city has entirely emerged from its wretched condition that gripped its people for days of Cotton Mather.

Is Salem entirely alone in casting its vote for the dead? How much difference between voting for an individual who has been dead for two years and voting for a principle that has been dead for a century? Is not the citizen who votes for his father did as well as for a departed candidate? Are not the states proving their allegiance to the dead when they permit the resurrection of a long gone era to determine the outcome of their voting? After all, the vote at Salem? Do not most of the vote just as foolishly as those who live along Massachusetts Bay?

GOV. BAKER TAKES PART IN CHURCH DEDICATION

Introduced by the Rev. C. C.
Crawford, Ex-Editor of Ku Klux Paper.

Gov. Baker was the principal speaker at the dedication of the first unit of the new Fourth Christian Church building, Carter and Obea avenues, yesterday afternoon. The Governor was introduced by the Rev. Cecil C. Crawford, pastor of the church.

"Every dollar spent in the building of a church," Gov. Baker said,
"is a dollar invested for the best purpose. Those nations enjoying a long, successful career are nations which have been led by religious men and had a place for Christianity and education. But those nations which have fallen into ruin are those whose people have discarded their churches and allowed religion and education to die out."

"Who founded the first free hospital? A Christian, public-spirited man. Who founded the first public school? A supporter of Christianity."

The Rev. Mr. Crawford announced that $76,650 had been contributed to the new building.
Two and a half years ago Crawford was editor of the St. Louis publication of the Ku Klux Klan, which was known as "The Patriot" and later as "The Missouri Flery Cross."

The publication announced a slogan contest, with a farm in Illinois, said to be valued at $25,000, as the prize. The farm was "won" by a friend of the minister-editor, and was turned back to its original owners. When this matter was exposed, Crawford admitted his part in it, and tendered his resignation as pastor, but the congregation refused to accept it.

Gov. Baker said today, when asked about the matter, that he had known nothing about any connection of Pastor Crawford with the Klan, and that he never met Crawford until he went to the church for the dedication ceremony. He said the invitation came to him from Dr. Frank Magoon, a member of the Police Board.

Man Found Dead in Cell.
George Obergfelt, 42 years old, of 114 North Broadway, was found dead in a cell at Central Police Station at 5:45 a. m. today. Other prisoners said that Obergfelt had arisen at 5 a. m. and complained of feeling sick. He lay down on a bench, his fellow prisoners taking no further notice of him. He had been arrested on a minor charge and was held for police court.

Clothes washed and dried in half the time without rushing them or hurrying you

YOU'LL be amazed to see how fast the New Easy does a complete washing. Yet gentleness is not sacrificed to speed, and you take things easier than ever before.

The New Easy has two tubs—one washes while the other dries. Instead of waiting to wash the clothes and then dry them, the Easy washes and dries together. While the Easy's famous Vacuum Cups get an eight-sheet batch of clothes snowy white, the Easy's marvelous new dryer takes eight more sheets (or the equal in other clothes) and in a few minutes has them ready for the line. Sixteen double sheets handled at one time—two things done at once. Is it any wonder the Easy is speedy? Yet your own careful hands could wash and dry the clothes no more gently.

Saves buttons—Saves ironing

There are never any broken or torn-off buttons after clothes come out of the Easy's new dryer.
Neither will you find any wrinkles in the Gently, like human hands, the Easy Vacuum Cups move up and down 60 times clothes. Think how much easier that makes the ironing.

In many other ways the New Easy saves you time and work. It handles all the water for you. A wonderful new water-circulating system takes the suds, the rinse and the blue waters as they come out of the clothes in the dryer, and pours each back into the proper tub, without wasting a single drop.

In the same way the wash water is emptied for you when you're all through. Should you wish to sterilize white pieces, you'll find a big convenience in the gas heater underneath the washer, which makes it unnecessary to keep the kitchen hot while you are working.

SANTA FE TRAIN WRECKED; NO PASSENGERS INJURED

Six Cars Leave Track in Accident Thought to Have Been Caused by Broken Rail.

ALBUQUERQUE, N. M., Nov. 15.—Santa Fe Continental passenger train No. 22, eastbound, was wrecked 34 miles west of Gallup, N. M., last night, according to a report received by the Journal this morning.

The wreck occurred at 10:45 o'clock at Querino Canyon. One chair car, a coach and four sleepers left the tracks. No one was seriously hurt, according to advices reaching here. A broken rail is said to have been the cause of the derailment. All trains are being held at Gallup awaiting the clearing of the track.

PROTEST AGAINST EJECTION OF COUNTY WELFARE SOCIETY Committee at Clayton Consults County Court; Removal Ordered From Court House.

A committee of friends of the St. Louis County Welfare Association today made formal protest to the County Court at Clayton against the ejection of the semi-official relief organization from its quarters in the basement of the courthouse.

The removal of its offices was made necessary by a shift which gave the growing office force of Health Commissioner Walters the County Farm Bureau quarters, and assigned the farm bureau to the welfare association office.

Presiding Judge Smiley, in reply to the appeal of the association today, declared the organization was only in the courthouse by sufferance, since it has no official standing, and asserted that he was opposed to making room for it now. Judge Preiss left the discussion hanging in the air by telling the protesters "not to worry, maybe something can be done."

RUBBER ELECTRO-PLATING PROCESS IS PATENTED Greater Strength Claimed for Material Produced by It Than by Present Methods.

By the Associated Press.
NEW YORK, Nov. 15.—A process for electro-plating with rubber has been patented by Dr. Paul Klein, of Budapest, and Drs. S. E. Sheppard and L. W. Eberlin of the Eastman laboratories in this country, says Industrial Engineering Chemistry, official organ of the American Chemical Society.

"By this process," the journal says, "it is possible to plate molds of any shape with rubber from tissue paper thinness to several inches thick. Rubber bands no thicker than a thread have been manufactured here under the new process, and have been found to be so much stronger than ordinary bands as to defy breaking by the bare hand."

The electric precipitation is not limited to crude rubber, the inventors assert. Ammoniated latex or milk of the rubber tree, can be mixed with sulphur, fillers and other compounding ingredients and the whole compound electrically precipitated, they say.

Arthur Smith, 58, Dies After Fire Spreads to Can of Gasoline.

Investigation has disclosed that the fire which caused fatal burns to Arthur Smith, 58 years old, a veteran of the Spanish-American War, in his room at 700A Market street Saturday night, started from a gasoline stove. He died yesterday morning. The position of the stove and a can of gasoline indicated that he had used the can to fill the stove and in some way fire had spread to the can. Smith served as a private of Engineers in the Spanish-American War and had been pensioned. He left the Soldiers' Home at Danville, Ill. last June of his own volition.

MORE THAN $1,500,000 RISE IN PANAMA CANAL TOLLS

Total of $22,831,055 Collected From 5197 Ships During Last Fiscal Year.

WASHINGTON, Nov. 15.—Tolls amounting to $22,831,055 were collected from 5197 ships passing through the Panama Canal during the last fiscal year. These figures, the annual report of Gov. Walker says, represent an increase of more than $1,500,000 over the previous year in tolls, and a gain of 524 toll-paying vessels.

The commercial traffic through the canal was greater during the year as compared with the previous one, but less than 1924, which established a record. This is accounted for by the decline in oil shipments. However, the net tonnage of passenger ships, general cargo carriers and others excluding tankers, showed a consistent increase, from 12,231,402 tons in 1923 to 13,450,351 tons in 1924.

The combined net revenue for the year was $17,340,862, as compared with $15,757,751 in 1925. With the exception of the Panama Canal Railroad Co., all of the business enterprises of the canal showed an Episodes of Preceding Installments.

Late one night Patrolman Wade is called into the shop of Sylvanus Gage, recluse tobacco dealer, just off the Bowery, New York. The old housekeeper, who had summoned him, who had recently received a threatening letter signed "Gray Phantom." Breaking in the door, Wade finds Gage dying from a knife thrust and is just in time to catch the words "Gray Phantom" from the murdered man's lips.

Down on Long Island at Sea Glimpses the Gray Phantom's retreat, the supposed murderer is astonished to read a lurid account of the crime. Realizing that he has been framed and that the police will spend all their energies looking for him, the Gray Phantom determines to seek out the real culprit, whom he believes to be in the gang of the old enemy, the Duke. But the strongest motive behind the Gray Phantom's bold stroke is to clear his name in the eyes of Helen Hardwick.

Suddenly, in the midst of one of his favorite amusements, he began to falter. A time he motionless, with his lightening glazing narrowly at the spot where Helen Hardwick had stood at the moment when he held her hand. His face was grim and troubled, as if a disturbing thought had just occurred to him. He got up and with long strides passed to the desk, where he pressed a button.

"Wade," he crisply announced when the fat man reappeared, "I am going to New York in the morning."

Wade sat down, drawing a shaky protest from an unoffending chair. "To New—New York?" he stammered.

"Exactly. Tell Dullah to pack my grip. I shall leave early, about the time you are getting your usual sleep."

Wade blinked his little eyes. "But why, boss?"

"Here's the reason," Vanard handed him one of the papers he had been perusing, watching with an amused smile the flabbergasted look that came into the fat man's face as he read. As he approached the end of the article, wheezy gasps and indignant mutters punctuated the reading.

"Rot!" he commented emphatically. "If I wasn't a fat man I'd lick the editor of this sheet within an inch of his life. Why, you all ways played the game according to the code, boss. You never killed a man in all your life."

"No, never."

"And you were right here at Sea Glimpses at the time the murder was done."

"True enough. But I might have some difficulty proving it. Your own testimony wouldn't be particularly impressive."

"Besides, there's just enough of truth in the police theory to give color to the lies. It is true Gage and I quarreled, and I believe I once threatened to give the old skinflint a beating. It was a foolish wrangle involving nothing but a cross made of imitation jade. I'd been wearing it at the time, and I could remember. Who put it there I don't know. Perhaps—"

"Your mother—maybe," suggested Wade, slanting a searching gaze at Vanard.

"I don't know, Wade. You may be right. I remember neither father nor mother. All I know is that the cross seemed to be the only connecting link between my present and the past I couldn't remember. I fought like mad when the street urchins and gangsters tried to take it away from me, and somehow, through thick and thin, I managed to cling to it. Then, one day about six years ago, I lost it. Probably the chain parted. Anyhow, in some mysterious manner the cross fell into Gage's possession. I went to Gage and demanded it. He must have seen how anxious I was to recover it, for he put a stiff price on it. I was willing to pay—would have paid almost anything—but each time I began to count out the money Gage doubled his price. So it went on for years and I admit I sometimes felt like strangling the old miser. But I never threatened to kill him and I never wrote the letter mentioned in the papers."

"Somebody's been doing some tall-lying," declared Wade flatly.

"If I wasn't so fat I'd make the fellow that wrote this article eat his own words. But you should worry, boss. They can't get away with it."

"I am not so sure, Wade. Seems to me they've made out a fairly complete case against the Gray Phantom. The motive is substantial enough. There are enough mysterious circumstances to suggest that only the Phantom could have committed the crime. The fact that the murderer stole a cheap trinket and left fifty thousands dollars' worth of real diamonds behind him is rather impressive. And you mustn't forget that a little evidence against the Gray Phantom will go a long way with a jury."

Wade, a picture of ponderous wrath, crumpled the newspaper in his huge fist. The fearful look in the small round eyes signified that his mind was grappling with a problem.

"The letter Gage got the day before the murder must have been forged," he ventured at last.

"Of course; but it may have been done skilfully enough to deceive all but the keenest eye. Handwriting experts have been known to disagree in matters of that kind."

The fat man reflected heavily. "Why didn't Gage beat it for the tall woods when he got the letter?"

"Because the tall woods are full of ambushes. Likely as not the letter gave him a jolt at first. Then, upon giving it a sober second thought, he cooled down. His principal consideration was that the Gray Phantom had never been known to commit a murder, and that consequently the letter was either a joke or a bluff."

"But he told the cops it was the Gray Phantom that stabbed him."

"Naturally. A wound in the chest isn't conducive to 'clear thinking.' We may assume that the murderer approached his victim by stealth and that Gage never saw the man who struck him down."

"Under the circumstances it was natural enough for him to suppose that, after all, the Gray Phantom had carried out his threat. What else was he to think?"

An ominous rumble sounded in Wade's expansive chest. "You've been framed, boss."

Vanard nodded. "And it doesn't require a great deal of brilliance to figure out who engineered the frame-up. The Duke has the reputation of being a good hater."

The fat man seemed startled. "But, the Duke's in stir," he argued. "You sent him there yourself."

"So I did." A pleased smile lighted Vanard's features. "But two or three members of his gang were not present at the round-up, and I have received tips to the effect that they have been organizing a new crowd. I suppose the Duke has been communicating with them through underground channels and instructing them in regard to this frame-up. The Duke has sworn to get me, and undoubtedly this is his method of accomplishing his aim. He chose the mode of revenge which he thought would hurt me most."

"If I wasn't a fat man I would 'began Wade."

"Save your threats. The Duke is a crafty rascal, just as clever as he's vindictive. That kind of a man makes a bad enemy. The only way to queer his game is to track down the man who did the crime. That's why I am going to New York in the morning. The police will never find the culprit for they are wasting their time and energies looking for the Gray Phantom. Therefore, it's up to me."

A scowl deepened in Wade's rubicund face. "The world must be coming to an end when the Gray Phantom turns detective. It's the maddest, craziest thing you ever did yet, boss."

"It will be quite an adventure," Vanard's eyes twinkled.

"It's too risky, boss. Why, every slick and harness bull and amateur sleuth on the American continent is on the lookout for you."

"Very likely."

"The police have enough on you to send you to the jug for a million years, even without the Sylvanus Gage job. And you can just bet the Duke's gang will have their eyes peeled, watching their chance to lead you into a trap."

"I suppose so."

The fat man sighed. He knew from long experience that his chief, once his mind was made up, was impervious to pleas and arguments. "Why don't you just sit tight?" was his final attempt. "I don't see what you're worrying about. They'll never find you here. Nobody knows where to look for you. You're safe."

"Sure of that?" Vanard smiled quietly. "There's one person who knows where to find me."

A look of startled comprehension came into Wade's face. "You mean the little queen?"

"I mean Miss Helen Hardwick," declared Vanard stiffly.

"Will she give you away?"

"It depends," murmured Vanard. "If she believes me guilty of murder she may consider it her duty to inform the police, and she would be absolutely right in doing so. But that's neither here nor there. I'm starting for New York in a few hours to track down the murderer of Sylvanus Gage."

Admission clashed with anxiety in Wade's face. "I get you, boss. You want to keep the Gray Phantom's record clean. You don't want any bloodstains on his name. You don't want the world to think that you've committed a murder."

An odd smile played about the Phantom's lips. "Wrong, Wade. It goes against the grain to have a foul murder linked to one's name, but it isn't that. I'm not lying awake nights worrying about the world's opinion. The only thing that troubles me is—"

He broke off, and his eyes sought the spot where Helen Hardwick had stood. "You needn't say it, boss."

Wade's voice was a trifle thick as he struggled out of the chair and gripped the other's hand. "If I wasn't fat man I'd tag right along, but I guess I'd only be in the way. Good luck—and give my regards to the little wren."

With slow, trundling strides he left the room. A moment later the door had closed behind him, and the Gray Phantom was alone. Once more, as he paced the floor, his eyes were soft and luminous. Suddenly he paused and bent a reverential look on the rug at his feet, as if he were standing in a hallowed spot.

"Blue or gray?" he mumbled.

CHAPTER IV.

MR. ADAIR, of Boston.

ROLAND ADAIR, Boston, Mass. It was thus the Gray Phantom inscribed the register at Hotel Pyramidon, while an affable clerk beamed approval on his athletic and well-groomed figure.

"What do you require, Mr. Adair?"

"Parlor, bedroom and bath, with southern exposure, preferably above the sixth floor."

The clerk, intuitively sensing that the new arrival was one accustomed to having his wishes complied with, glanced at his card index. "We have exactly what you want, Mr. Adair."

"Good! I wish breakfast and the morning newspapers sent to my apartment at once."

"It shall be done, Mr. Adair." The clerk bowed debonairly, little suspecting that the new guest, who so unobtrusively presented all the earmarks of a cultured and leisurely gentleman, was at this moment the most "wanted" man on the North American continent. The guest himself grinned in his short black beard while an elevator carried him to the ninth floor, and an acute observer would have gained the impression that he was bent upon an adventure hugely to his liking.

He ate his breakfast slowly and with keen relish, meanwhile glancing over the newspapers, which were still featuring the East Houston street murder as the chief sensation.

Nothing had as yet been discovered which threw the faintest light on the peculiar manner in which the slayer had left the scene of his crime, and it was regarded as doubtful whether this mysterious phase of the case would be cleared up until after the Gray Phantom's arrest. It had been ascertained that the notorious criminal was not aboard any of the vessels that had sailed for foreign ports since "he murder," so it was thought probable that the fugitive was still in the country, and it was confidently declared by police officials that the dragnet would gather him in before long.

The accounts in the various papers were substantially similar, but again the Phantom detected a faintly dissenting note in the Sphere's article. It was so slight as to be scarcely discernible, but to the Phantom it signified a lurking doubt in the writer's mind, and a suggestion that the Sphere's reporter sensed a weak link in the chain of evidence.

"I'll have a talk with the fellow," he decided. "I might ask him to take dinner with me this evening. He may prove interesting."

He finished his coffee and lighted a long, thin cigar, then passed to the window and watched the procession below. After his long and monotonous seclusion at Sea Glimpses the life of the city acted as a gentle electric stimulant on his nerves. He glowed and tingled with sensations that had lain dormant during long months of tedium, and the strongest and rarest of these was a feeling of ever-present danger.

The Gray Phantom did not deceive himself. His present adventure was by far the most hazardous of his career. On the one hand he was threatened by the nimble-witted man hunters of the Police Department, and on the other by the henchmen of the Duke. His only hope of safety lay in his subtle intelligence, which had seldom failed him in moments of danger, and the temporary protection afforded by his beard.

Luckily, the only photograph of him in existence, the one the newspapers had displayed on their front pages the morning after the murder, showed him smooth shaven. The beard, giving him a maturer and somewhat more professional appearance, afforded a thin and yet satisfactory disguise, but it would be of scant use if by the slightest misstep or careless move he should attract suspicion to himself. In such an event, certain records filed away in the archives of the police would quickly establish his identity as the Gray Phantom. Nevertheless, he was pleased that the descriptions carried by the newspapers had made no mention of a beard.

There was a measure of safety, too, in the sheer audacity with which he was proceeding. The man hunters might look everywhere else, but they would scarcely expect to find their quarry living sumptuously at a first-class hotel. His free and easy mode of conduct, unmarked by the slightest effort at concealment, afforded a protection which he could not have found in the shabbiest hotel and under the most elaborate disguise.

Yet, despite all the safeguards his brain could invent, the situation was perilous enough to give the Gray Phantom all the excitement of a game of hide-and-seek. His pulses throbbed, and there was a keen sparkle in his eyes as he left the hotel and went out on the streets. The very air seemed charged with a quality that held him in a state of piquant suspense. The policemen appeared more alert than usual, and now and then snatches of conversation reached his ears from little groups at street corners and in doorways who were avidly discussing the Gage murder and the chances of the Gray Phantom being caught.

At each subway entrance and elevated stairway loitered a seemingly slothful and impassive character whom his trained eye easily identified as a detective.

NOTRE DAME STANDS OUT AS STRONG CANDIDATE FOR TITLE HONOR

COAST GAME BIG HURDLE IN PATH OF IRISH

Alabama, Stanford, Michigan, and Brown Other Teams With Grounds for Claim to Championship, Perry Writes.

By Lawrence Perry,
Special Correspondent of the Post-Dispatch.

NEW YORK, Nov. 15.—As the football season draws near its end, certain football events are drawing into the clear as leaders. By their cleanly cut victory over the Army, Notre Dame stands out in high relief, a distinction which is sharpened by a luminous background of success in the middle-west.

In the south the University of Alabama team is soaring higher and higher into the Dixie Blue, dominating the south as Mount Shasta dominates the California countryside.

On the west coast Stanford through her conquering defeat of the University of Washington combination stands out in solitary grandeur as one of the nation's great gridiron outfits.

By beating Ohio State, Michigan wears in the western conference the aspect of superiority. But what, oh, what is going to happen when the Wolverines collide with that man-eating Minnesota eleven? Northwestern also has a chance to take the Big Ten title.

Brown Has Strong Machine. Brown's success at Cambridge against Harvard was merely added testimony as to the power and the versatility of the Brunonians. Here is a team qualified to stand with the best and so she shall continue to stand unless some unexpected cropper is encountered before the season ends. So with New York University.

Trinceton's season is ended. The Tigers accomplished their prime objective in defeating Harvard and Yale and content with this triumph they are content to let fame as the champion of the earth go to any team that wants it.

Hard Battle Ahead.

In a few weeks now the eyes of the country will be turning to Los Angeles where on the first Saturday of next month the Notre Dame eleven will venture into the sunny warmth of Southern California to tackle the University of Southern California team.

This looks to be the most serious hurdle lying ahead of the Notre Dame eleven. The climate may well prove a handicap to the Northerners and the strength of the U. S. C. is certain to prove another handicap. Rockne may plan to beat the climate by having his men hop off the train not more than a few hours before the game. The complication is that after beating the climate the South Benders will have to beat the Trojans and that in itself is no small order.

Oklahoma Aggies Must Beat Sooners to Gain Valley Title

Outcome of Contest Between Farmers and Oklahoma State Thanksgiving Day Will Be Watched Eagerly by Nebraska, Missouri, Kansas Aggies and Grinnell.

The newest member of the Missouri Valley Conference, the Oklahoma Agricultural and Mechanical College of Stillwater, Ok., sits today at the top of the Valley heap while no less than four elevens, rated higher in early season tilts, ask themselves in bewilderment how it all came about and how long it will last.

That the unblemished record of the Farmer eleven will remain spotless until Thanksgiving day is assured; that is, as far as the Valley is concerned. Next Saturday the Farmers meet Arkansas at Stillwater, and the Razorbacks play duplicate nonconference victories gained by Tulsa University and Texas Christian University.

On Thanksgiving day the Stillwater institution will reach its time of great trial and worry, however, when the Farmers meet the State university team in the concluding game of the season. The outcome of the struggle with the Sooners, generally rated a better machine until their defeat last Thursday by Kansas, will determine the Farmer hopes at a Valley title.

Eagerly awaiting the result of this encounter will be four other Valley institutions who have lost but one game apiece. These in the order of their present percentages, determined by the number of games played, are Nebraska, Missouri, Kansas Aggies and Grinnell. Of the four, Nebraska is the only one which has completed its schedule of Valley games.

The others will meet in games of title significance. Valley opponents on both next Saturday and on the following Thursday. Kansas Aggies have yet to surmount Iowa State, recent victor over Drake, while Grinnell, loser Saturday to the Farmers, will meet

St. L. U. to Meet Oklahoma U. at Norman Saturday

Then the Billikens Return and Play South Dakota State on Thursday.

St. Louis University came through the Loyola contest last Saturday without injuries and now faces two games in less than two weeks. Saturday they will play the University of Oklahoma at Norman and returning, will meet South Dakota State at Sportsman's Park on Thanksgiving day.

No more scrimmages will be held at the Billiken field, practice for the remainder of the season being confined to light work and signal drill. Coach Mathews announced this morning that the freshmen will close their season Thanksgiving morning against Ozark Wesleyan at St. Louis U. field, starting at 10 o'clock.

While Oklahoma's record in the Valley Conference this year is nothing to inspire Billiken rooters with confidence, the score should not be extra heavy. The locals are going fairly strong now and will never be any better this year.

The strength of the Sooners is evident from their record which shows that they beat Drake 11 to 0, Washington 21 to 0 and the gigantic Missouri eleven 19 to 7. Failure to kick goal after clutching down lost a 10-8 game to Kansas on Armistice day and the Sooners dropped a close one to the Kansas Aggies early in the season 15 to 12.

Saturday's defeat by Loyola was just one of those things that will happen. A squeeze on the ball too tight by a fraction of a foot-pound or perhaps a flying elbow of a Loyola player caused Feld to lose the ball after he had plunged over for a touchdown in the second quarter and it was a hard one to swallow.

Elgin Legion Wins.

By the Associated Press.
DIXON, Ill., Nov. 15.—Elgin Legion defeated Clinton (Ia.) Legion 4 to 0, in their "scrub" game here Sunday afternoon. The game, which was attended by a big crowd despite the rain which fell continuously throughout, was played on a slow, muddy field. Rice made the only touchdown of the day when he took a Clinton punt on Elgin's 20-yard line.

WITTERS INCREASE LEAD IN WASHINGTON SCRATCH TENPIN LEAGUE

The Witter Razz team increased their lead to four games in the Washington Scratch League last week by trimming the Fishers who are their closest rivals two games. The Razz shot 2577, Hank Bippin pacing the team with 599 while the Fishers shot 2870 with Roy Karls, who is leading the league in individual averages with 212, rolling 691 with games of 184, 257 and 248. Schaefer's Recreation, by winning two from the United Bakers went into a three-cornered tie with the Clover Leafs and the United Bakers for third place. Amquist was high for the Schaeferers with 619, while Rothwell shot 656 for the Bakers with 258 in his final effort.

The Schweiglers captured two from the Clover Leafs, Schweiglers rolling 2941 with three consecutive games of 977, 980 and 984. Spies being high with 670 closely followed by Lacing with 631. The Clover Leafs also shot three good games for a 2928 total, Sottrell being high with 625, with 235 for an opener.

day to the Farmers, will meet Drake in their annual encounter at Des Moines, Missouri, in ranking but a few points below Nebraska, meets Kansas next Saturday on the new Tiger stadium field.

Four-Cornered Tie Possible.

Should the Farmers fail to emerge successfully from their meeting with the Oklahoma University team, it is possible that four teams will have a claim to the Valley title, which goes technically to the eleven holding the highest percentage at the close of the season. In this event, Nebraska will have the highest average in so far as they have completed a schedule of six Valley opponents, while the other contenders will be unable to match the Huskers' victories.

Missouri's schedule calls for but five Valley teams, three out of four of which have already been defeated. Kansas Aggies have engaged in but three Valley tilts, winning two. Grinnell's program calls for five Valley games, but the handicap of a tie with Ames has cut down the chance of the Pioneer for a high average.

Among the stiff games which Valley elevens have yet to face with nonconference teams are those of Drake with Notre Dame, Nebraska with New York University and the University of Washington; Washington University with the Quantico Marines and Oklahoma U. with St. Louis U.

Always ready to treat small injuries

"BEST EVER" FOR MUSCLE-LAMENESS

Scout leader makes short work of strains, sprains, bruises

A Boy Scout leader at Utica, New York, has found a simple and always effective way of taking care of the lame muscles, the bruises, strains and sprains that "the scouts" are always bringing him for treatment.

"I just put on a little Sloan's Liniment," as the bottle says, without rubbing," he writes. "It takes out stiffness and pain as nothing else will. We have it always on hand and we think it is the best ever."

Sloan's gives real help because it doesn't just deaden the pain; it gets at the cause. Right to the place that hurts it brings a healing tide of fresh blood—building up the injured tissues, clearing out the fatigue poisons. Almost at once you feel relief. Stiffness, swelling, inflammation go down. The pain stops. Get a bottle today and have it on hand for the first emergency. All druggists—35 cents.

Marathons at 26 Miles, 385 Yards Found to Be Four Miles Too Long

By the Associated Press.
BALTIMORE, Md., Nov. 15.—THE ancient Greek runner who carried the news of the battle of Marathon to Athens covered only a fraction over 22½ miles, it now develops, and as a result the official distance for the Marathon race may be shortened in order to maintain its tradition.

The distance of the event since 1908, has been universally recognized as 26 miles, 385 yards, supposedly corresponding to the actual length of the

HARD ROAD LEAGUE CHAMPIONS MAY MEET BLUES IN GAME HERE

Negotiations for a game with the West Frankfort (Ill.) team, champions of the Southern Illinois Hard Roads League, to be played in St. Louis next Sunday, are announced by the St. Louis Blues, professional football team, following yesterday's postponement because of rain.

The return contest with the Bend (Ill.) Independents, which was called off in time to save Boise Potthoff's team a needless trip to St. Louis, probably will be played off Nov. 24. Bend also suggested Dec. 5 as a date for the meeting, and decision has been deferred.

The postponement disappointed a score or so of Bend followers who came to St. Louis on early morning trains, before it was apparent that the rain would make play impossible.

EAST HAS BIG LEAD IN INTERSECTIONAL FOOTBALL CONTESTS

By the Associated Press.
NEW YORK, Nov. 15.—The East maintains an overwhelming lead over all rival sections in the battle for 1926 intersectional football honors, adding three triumphs to the string Saturday, although Notre Dame gave the Middle West no little prestige by beating the Army. The record shows 27 triumphs for the East in a list of 52 major intersectional contests, as compared with only 13 for the Middle West and seven for the South.

The table of results follows:

	E.	MW.	S.	SW.	W.	Total
East	27	13	14	0	27	61
Middle West	13	13	7	8	12	53
South	3	2	2	2	7	14
Southwest	0	0	1	2	1	4

FORREST FERGUSON'S TRIAL

Circuit Judge Ossing Grants Delay Until After Case in Federal Court Is Heard.

The trial of Forrest Ferguson, president of the defunct Ferguson-McKinney Manufacturing Co., went over until Jan. 24 when it was called in Circuit Judge Ossing's court today. He is charged with obtaining money under false pretenses and with making a false financial statement.

It will be recalled that the Ferguson-McKinney Co. obtained in excess of $3,000,000 of loans upon statements which were disclosed last autumn to have been a fictitious showing of the firm's condition.

Edward Foristel, attorney for Ferguson, stated that he would not be prepared to defend his client in State court until after Ferguson's trial in Federal court upon a charge of misuse of the funds in connection with the sending of the false financial statement to Eastern banks. That trial is set in Federal Judge Davis' court for Jan. 17.

Wayne Ely, special prosecutor, consented to the postponement.

HOLDUP MEN WANTED TO RIDE

Force Driver to Take Them to East St. Louis, Then Leave Him.

Joseph F. Dwyer of 111 North Sixteenth street was driving his automobile north in Seventh boulevard and stopped for the signal at Park avenue at 5:30 p. m. yesterday when two men, who alighted from a Chevrolet auto at the curb boarded his machine and poked a revolver into his ribs.

Dwyer was told to drive to Chouteau avenue and thence east, and across the Free Bridge to East St. Louis. After traversing several streets on the East Side the men ordered Dwyer to pull up alongside a large automobile parked at the curb. Thanking him for the trouble they had caused him, the men got out of his car, got into the car at the curb and drove away. Dwyer returned to St. Louis to report the incident.

INDICTMENTS AGAINST POLICEMAN DROPPED

Walter Bauer Was Accused of Beating Proprietor in Raid on Hotel.

Indictments charging Special Police Officer Walter Bauer of the morality squad with common assault and oppression in office, in connection with a raid on the Grand View Hotel, 2515 Washington boulevard, were dismissed by a nolle-pros order from the prosecuting attorney's office, in the Court of Criminal Correction today.

Bauer was one of four policemen indicted by the grand jury in September, 1925, on charges growing out of raids. The offenses charged in all cases are misdemeanors, but are subject to indictment in the more serious of the two charges, is imprisonment up to one year, and disqualification from holding any official position and from voting.

Bauer was charged by Julius Fischman with molesting him in the course of the morality squad's raid on the Grand View Hotel the night of Sept. 12, 1925. The squad was headed by Sgt. John Roach. Fischman said Bauer attacked and

CONVICT FORGES PAROLE FROM OKLAHOMA PRISON

Frank Is Discovered After Former School Head Returns to Family and He Is Jailed.

OKLAHOMA CITY, Ok., Nov. 15.—Admitting he forged his own parole, L. M. Carson, former Creek County Superintendent of Schools, convicted of fraud, is in jail again today.

Larson was sentenced to 15 years in the State penitentiary on a charge of raising a county school warrant from $4.05 to $204.02. He had been transferred to the reformatory at Granite and placed in charge of the institution's school.

Four days ago a parole was received bearing the signatures of the Governor and Secretary of State. Larson returned to his wife and six children. The forgery was discovered when the parole was filed at the Capitol. Although he told officers last night he had prepared the parole, he refused to disclose how he obtained the official blank and had it mailed to the prison.

beat him when he objected to remarks made by the policeman about a woman living in the hotel whom he had arrested.

Of the three other policemen indicted, one, George Tipton, was acquitted last April by a jury, and the cases of Fred Camp and William Carr were dismissed in May, by a nolle-pros.

Suddenly Stricken.

WALTER M. HEZEL, LAWYER, FOUND DEAD AT HIS HOME

Former Counsel for Terminal Suffered Attack of Indigestion During the Night.

Walter M. Hezel, 72 years old, an attorney, was found dead at his home, 3945 Magnolia avenue, yesterday at 7 a. m.

His wife, who found him, told police he had been ill for a few days. He complained at that time that he was suffering from indigestion, but said he expected the attack to pass shortly. He had been afflicted with neuritis for more than a year, but his condition had been such recently that medical attention was not required.

For many years Mr. Hezel was active in the general practice of law, and he ranked high in legal ability and ethical standing. He was counsel for the St. Louis Terminal Association for 18 years, during which time he often was brought into court to represent the damage suits and other forms of litigation. Four years ago he severed his connection with the Terminal and joined the law firm of Foristel, Mudd, Hezel & Habicht, and since then he had been actively practicing cases in court.

Besides his widow he is survived by two daughters and a son, Mrs. Paul A. Conrad, Miss Anne Elizabeth Hezel and Mr. Morris Hezel, and four sisters, Mrs. Alfred Russell, Miss Charles Auter, Mrs. Edward Woodman, Miss Ella Hezel. His father, the late Morris Hezel, was one of the founders of the Hotel Milling Co.

The funeral will be Wednesday morning from the Church of the Resurrection, Conception, Lafayette avenue and Longfellow boulevard, with interment in Bellefontaine cemetery. Mr. Hezel was twice married. His first wife died.

BONDS ARE STRONG BUT TRADE LIGHTER ON LOCAL MARKET

ST. LOUIS POST-DISPATCH NEW YORK BOND MARKET

MONDAY EVENING, NOVEMBER 15, 1926

NEW YORK CURB MARKET

ST. LOUIS POST-DISPATCH PAGE 31

Special to the Post-Dispatch.
NEW YORK, Nov. 15.—The bond market continued strong at the start of the week but activity fell off somewhat after the first few days. The market was picked up by a few new issues, but the volume of trading was not as heavy as in previous weeks. The market was characterized by a general upward movement in prices, with a few exceptions. The market was particularly strong in the foreign bond market, with a number of new issues being placed. The market was also strong in the domestic bond market, with a number of new issues being placed. The market was characterized by a general upward movement in prices, with a few exceptions. MIXED PRICE TREND ON CURB EXCHANGE
By the Associated Press.
NEW YORK, Nov. 15.—An uncertain and irregular tone with mixed movements characterized the curb exchange today on the New York Curb Exchange. There was a general upward movement in prices, with a few exceptions. The market was particularly strong in the foreign bond market, with a number of new issues being placed. The market was also strong in the domestic bond market, with a number of new issues being placed.

Pointers in Auction Bridge

In my succeeding articles I shall first take up doubles of one to Trumpy and later other double problems.

The pointer for today is: A double of one No Trump is formative unless the partner of the doubler has previously bid a double; in which case it is a mere guess.

Examples: Dealer bids one of suit, Second Hand one No Trump, Third Hand double; business because the partner has bid, Dealer passes, Second Hand one No Trump, Third Hand double; information because the partner has not bid, Dealer one of a suit, Second Hand double, Third Hand one No Trump, Fourth Hand double; the Fourth Hand's double would be based on reason of the double previously made by the partner.

Tomorrow I will consider strength, required to justify the double of one No Trump. (Copyright, 1926.)

WHAT WOMEN LIKE THE LEAST IN MEN; AND MEN THE LEAST IN WOMEN

The Superior "There. There!" Intended to Soothe the Feminine Mind, but Frequently Enrages—The Woman Who Meddles in the Strictly Business Affairs of Her Husband.

MRS. WILSON WOODROW. No matter how much we pride ourselves on our open-mindedness and our spirit of fair play, we are all at heart bundles of prejudice, antagonisms, and intolerance, and I frankly and freely admit that my pet hate, the thing that makes me see red, and lose all sense of sportsmanship, and fairness, is the masculine "there-ness!"

A Relic of Olden Chivalry. This attitude on the part of men is a little difficult to define. It is a mixture of various masks and adapts itself to different situations. The "there, there" of a man discussing business or politics with a woman is quite different from the marital "there, there," but in essence they are the same.

So might the sons of God have been turned to the daughters of men, or the Judge to Maud Muller, or Don Quixote to Dulcinea. It was the last rag and remnant of an ancient chivalry which was based on a mixture of reverence and contempt.

Some illustrations drawn from my own experience and that of other women may make this plain. I cross the streets with extreme caution, and sedulously refrain from being drawn into that favorite game of the jay-walker—trying to see how close he can shave the wheels of an oncoming car. It always seemed to me more dangerous and safer to flirt with this information or get blanks at our store.

I was walking with a great, heavy fellow, and, seeing that the morning tide of traffic had started, I waited. Before I knew it, he seized me by the arm and pushed me into the middle of the

The End of a Friendship. "There, there," "frail cat," he said cheerily, "don't you know I'll be here in five minutes." Just then a shot around the corner, and he was three leaps in the air, and the next thing we were skipping over the top of the opposite curb.

I limped along, I metaphorically rubbed salt into his wound. "Why," I asked, "simply because you are a man, should you have a better eye for calculating chances than I? Why should my judgment of our chances be as good as yours? As you proved, it was better." He tried to answer me, and we ended coldly. It was the end of a beautiful friendship.

Again, I sought the advice of an authority on certain investments. Very kindly gave me the information I wished, and, as far as I was concerned, the interview ended. But his conscience would not allow him to let me without a homily on women and the investment question.

Women couldn't be too cautious, he said, they were so likely to be taken in by the smooth-tongued and unscrupulous sellers of gold bricks. I was a writer, I asked, "You women of the pen, you are apt to be imaginative and impulsive."

Wonderful thing, imagination, but little dangerous in business, he said. But there, there, no doubt you were wasting his breath, I had mainly shown wisdom in coming

Murder Is Averted. A red mist floated before my eyes. He would have been a man except for two reasons: one was that I didn't own a revolver, and the other was the knowledge that no jury would acquit me. It would not, in the judgment of passion. Whereas, if there ever was a crime that could come under those headlines, that would have been one of them.

There was nothing to do, so I walked along the street, kicking at the toes of my new slippers, and muttering my own private formula for calming the nerves—some lines from Kipling: "Do not look for holy saints to guide me on my way, for male and female devilskins lead me to my fate."

If these are added, I rejoice if not, I do not mind. But it was a long time before I said, "If these are added, I rejoice if not, I do not mind."

Recently I met a woman acquaintance whose face was distorted with evil and unchristian passion. Her teeth were set, her eyes staring, and you could almost hear her breathing from her nose.

"You know," she said, "that my husband and I conduct the office together. He is so slow and poky about things that could be finished and out of the way in no time, but when I preach a little efficiency, he will not listen to me. He has a habit of saying, "There, there, you don't understand, just let that alone until I get around to it," that drives me crazy.

I heard the husband's side later. "If she would only attend to her own department and not meddle in mine, we would get along all right, but when I try to be polite instead of ordering her to get out, she flares up and says: 'You can't talk to me that way.'"

The bewildered creature could not understand that he had taken the worst method of gaining his own ends, the kind, superior, condescending, there-there way which always denotes that he does not consider the woman he thus addresses his ordinary intelligence and common sense. The individualistic American woman is quick to feel this and hence her heated retorts.

Advice to a Husband. I was talking to a man on this subject and he said: "I admit I there-there my wife, but what am I to do? She is one of those high-strung, energetic persons who drives herself unmercifully. She has the house and the children and me to look after, any number of social obligations, and is on a dozen committees of this and that. If I tell her of the problems that come up in business, she worries over them and nags me with suggestions, and criticisms of what she calls my inactive methods. What can I do?"

"Lie to her consistently and constantly," was my unimolal advice. "But don't there-there her, it only arouses her suspicions and sets her teeth on edge."

If we would give a little study to the psychology of those nearest us, most of us could avoid much of the unhappiness of life. The moment we comprehend another's temperament, we hold the whip hand and may easily tread the path of peace.

I agree that at this stage of human progress men cannot safely discard the there-there-little-woman soft soap, but they should not try to wash every woman's face with it. It is very soothing to some complexions, but irritating to others and apt to bring out a rash.

Coating "The Poor Dear." For instance, I went to the home of a woman who was extremely successful in business before her marriage, and found her Buddha of a husband, and laying flowers of flattery at his shrine.

"Why," I asked crudely, when he had departed, "are you enacting the role of Polly, jangling all her bells and with her cap rakishly askew?"

She dropped into a chair and wearily pushed back her permanent wave.

"I have just discovered," she said, "that the poor dear has a wonderful opportunity to double the profits of his business, and I have been trying to induce him to grasp it before it floats out of sight. He doesn't see it, and I am trying to coax him into it by playing the gamboling kitten or the sheep-cheeping canary, as you will."

Men's Poor Psychology. "He has the indulgent husband complex. Work is a necessary evil to him, so he tries to put himself in my place and think what he would do if he were a carefree woman. His favorite speech is: 'You tolled hard enough before you were married, and now I want you just to be pretty and happy and enjoy yourself!'

"If I try to make him understand, and tell him that business is the only game I truly enjoy, he says reprovingly, 'No woman does really; she is not fitted for it. There, there, you haven't learned to play yet, that's all.' Gr-r-r," she made dreadful, grinding sounds. Another thing convinces me that men are poor psychologists. They never seem to realize that it is often the Junoesque type of woman who craves the pacifying there-there. In their blundering, masculine way, they invariably assume that bulk means competence, the ability to stand up to any trouble, and to do large things in a large way, while they take it for granted that the small women need petting and protection.

I venture to say that there is scarcely a woman who hasn't, with a sinking heart, seen a husband, father, or other male relative attempt a carpentering or plumbing job which requires skill instead of self-confidence. She knows from experience what the results will be—a terrible wreckage and mud-die; much larger bills than if an expert had been called in the first place, and probably wounds for her to bind up.

But although she reasons, pleads, and even points out past disasters, she is met with a "There, there, that's enough. I don't intend to pay a plumber for tinkering all day with what I can fix in two minutes."

Curiously enough, it is not alone the conservatives, who cry "there, there!" I have listened to men who avowed the most radical feminist sentiments, and before their flaming words were cold on their lips they have turned around and there-there me all over the place.

But if one may judge by the signs of the times, it looks as if, in the not too distant future, the boot may be on the other leg. I may even live to hear some woman say, "There, there, big man! Don't bother your head about things you couldn't understand even if I explained them to you. You run and play and let Gergette do it."

Shrimp Fritters

THOROUGHLY beat 3 eggs. Add to them a pinch of salt, ¼ cup of milk, and 1 tablespoonful melted butter. Take 1 pint of fresh shrimps (or 1 can of the best brand of shrimps) and chop them (before stirring into mixture), with fine bread crumbs enough to make a stiff batter. Then mix with the eggs, etc. Drop the mixture, by the spoonful into boiling fat and fry to a light brown. Drain on paper and serve hot. (Copyright, 1926.)

THAT GUILTIEST FEELING

HOW ABOUT IT, FERD?

THE Queen has gone and with her goes
Our love and fondest wishes;
While she's away we'd hate to think
That in the royal kitchen sink,
On Queen Marie, his nob's, the Kink,
Is stacking up the dishes.
We hope and trust that Queep Marie
Has left the back-door mat out.
So Ferdinand can find the key
When he comes rolling in at three,
And won't forget amidst the glee,
To put the royal cat out.

SPOILING THE DAY.

In the midst of an ovation given the Queen in Denver a 6-year-old boy yelled, "Hey, Queen, where's the King?" Marie smiled, but it probably set her thinking.

George Bernard Shaw says he hasn't the least idea why he was awarded the Nobel prize for literature for 1925, as he didn't write anything that year. That's the reason, no doubt. The committee evidently appreciates the art of repression in writing.

"British Take to Hot Dogs."
The English bull will take to the brush.

George Bernard wouldn't have been surprised if he had received the award the year he wrote so entertainingly and misadventurously about the affair between J. Dempsey and G. Carpenter.

As an added attraction at the horse show Queen Marie stopped the show. The four-footed entries didn't have a Chinaman's chance.

We note that the guy who wouldn't walk across the street to see a Queen was among those present. His name in round numbers is Legion.

Why walk across the street to see a Queen when you have a window on this side?

"Duchess Adopts Airplane."
Why not adopt a baby blimp?

QUITE SO.
A straw vote would undoubtedly show a preponderance in favor of the present law in regard to the wetting of whistles. Only soft drinks are taken through straws. Mint juleps being the exception to prove the rule.

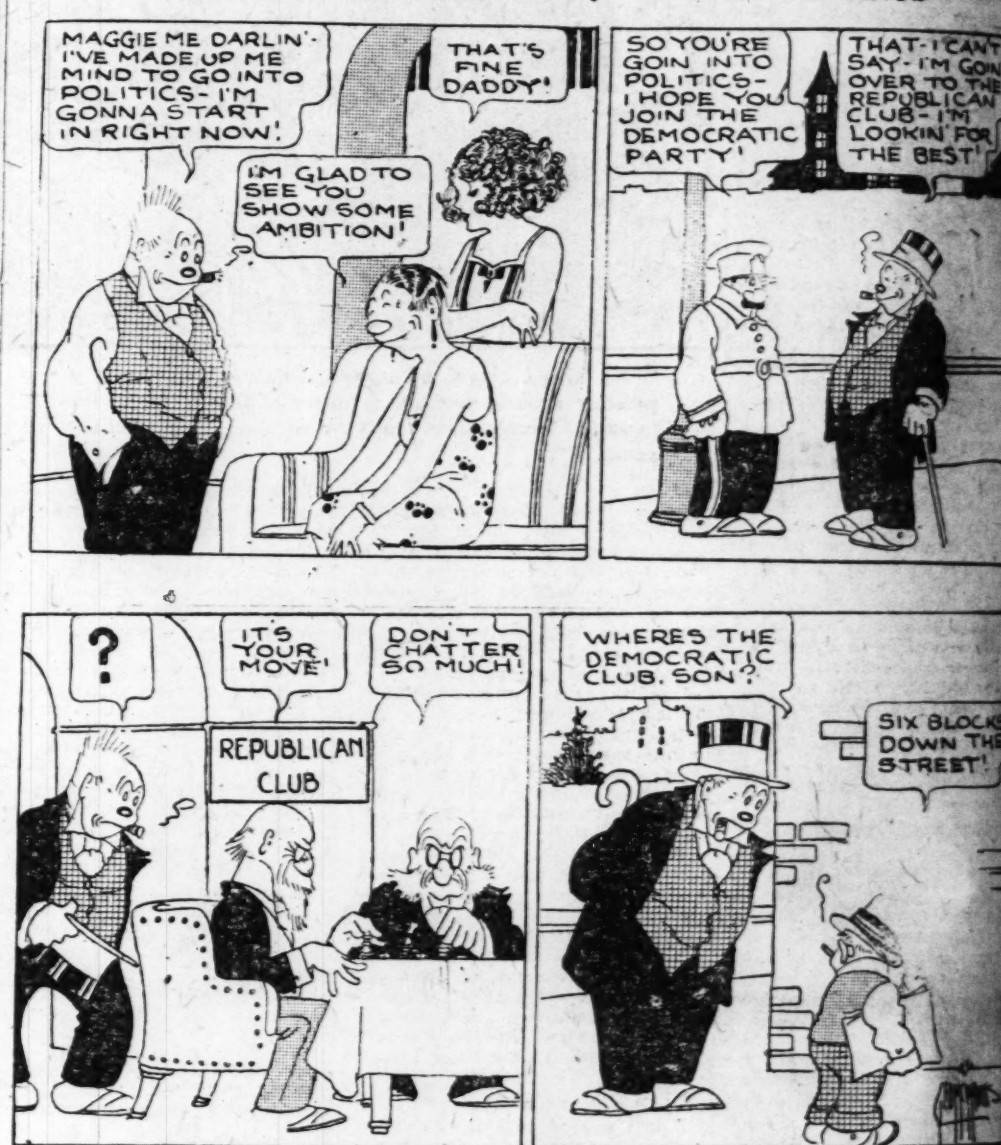

With the defection of Princeton the famous "Big Three" has dwindled down to a "Tiny Two."

Post-Dispatch Bureau.
29-33 Wyatt Building.
WASHINGTON, Nov. 14.—Major-General Amos A. Fries, chief of the Army Chemical Warfare Service and commander of the American Legion for the District of Columbia, is heading a movement to oust from the faculty of the Eastern High School of this city Henry Flury, a history instructor, because Flury's definition of "Socialism," which won a $5 prize in a contest conducted by the Forum Magazine, Flury, a former student of Prof. Scott Nearing, is standing on his rights as an American citizen. He declares that as long as he expresses his private opinions and does not associate those opinions with his official position, he cannot be separated from his place on the high school faculty.

Refusing to side with either party, Dr. Frank W. Ballou, superintendent of the Washington schools, has brought the matter to the attention of the School Board, which in secret session resolved to let Flury stay on the faculty, for the time being at least, and so insured Fries.

Fries, however, is not content to let the matter rest, contending that any instructor who finds fault with the present industrial system is not fit person to teach school in Washington. Fries does not differentiate between a teacher's private opinions and his classroom utterances.

Gov. Hunt Intervenes.
The whole affair was kept quiet until Gov. G. W. P. of Arizona, a friend of Flury, requested to Supt. Ballou against effort to oust Flury. When questioned, Supt. Ballou refused to discuss the case, stating that the school board had handled it in an executive session.

Flury's definition was only one of 10 which won $5 prizes. It appeared with the others in the October issue of the Forum, as a continuation of an article written by George Bernard Shaw. It was as follows:

"Socialism is a big question mark. It asks why, with all the wonderfully productive machinery and improved methods of organization, the workers are still slaves. It asks why civilization is so cruel and ugly. It asks why the children still toil in factories. It asks why those who create do not enjoy the advantages of what is created, why those who build automobiles walk, those who build Pullmans ride in box cars, those who build palaces live in hovels. It asks: Is not the industrial civilization we have created a Frankenstein that has made itself our master?"

The definition was signed, "Henry Flury, Washington, D. C.," and was to indicate that Flury was connected with the Washington public schools.

Fries Writes to Board.
Friend of Gen. Fries showed the article and protested that definition was "un-American." Fries, upon sent Supt. Ballou following letter:

"Dear Mr. Ballou: In The Forum, published by the Forum Publishing Co., 247 Park avenue, New York City, for the month of October, there is found a definition of Socialism, on page 590 by Henry Flury of Washington, D. C.

"I am just informed in a letter from Mr. Henry Flury, a teacher in one of the high schools of the District of Columbia.

"As commander of the American Legion for the department of the District of Columbia, I object most strenuously to the idea put forth in the Forum by Mr. Flury and to the keeping in the schools of the District of Columbia of one who is in effect that workmen in America are slaves; that our civilization is cruel; that little children toil in factories (some do, but not many); who says that those who build automobiles and Pullmans walk and live in box cars or the factories of Henry Ford or who has taken the trouble to go to the building operations and in dress anywhere in this city will
